By RALPH MCGILL.
Atlanta's 1933 edition of the Crackers opened up the local baseball season Thursday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park before a crowd of 11,575, only to make the same discovery that Old Mother Hubbard did.

The baseball cupboard was bare, the Knoxville Smokies winning, 4 to 2, in a game which saw the Crackers dropped into the runner-up position at the outset when the veteran Andy Messinger was touched hard.

While the victory cupboard was bare, indications were that the Crackers would salvage one of the chief honors of the season. The Atlanta attendance led Chattanooga by more than 2,000. Indications were that this would assure the attendance trophy for Atlanta. New Orleans, however, is yet to open at home. By a peculiar arrangement of the schedule New Orleans does not open at home until Saturday. It now becomes a question of whether beer and baseball on Saturday can best Atlanta's record.

Baseball tradition orders that the celebration of the opening day be staged before the game—a very fine tradition when the demonstration is a defeat for the home talent. Atlanta's celebration was one of the finest in years, carried off with a swing and a sweep of music and color which proved most attractive.

The real feature of the program was the loud demand of the crowd for beer. It occurred when Governor Eugene Talmadge, who was to participate in the flagpole with Mayor James L. Key and other dignitaries. One lone voice shouted, "Hey, Talmadge, give us beer." And then the crowd took it up, the shout for the amber fluid becoming a crescendo of sound that echoed from the hills and rattled in the flats. "Give us beer," the Governor Talmadge, smiling broadly, marched sedately on.

Near before has the city seen such a collection of notables in the "first" battery.

In the pitchers' box was Miss Fort Scott Meador, vice president of the Debutante Club. She was pronounced by all officials present to be the most attractive opening day "pitcher" Atlanta has ever had.

At bat was Governor Talmadge. The governor used to play at Georgia. He shed his coat, showing a

Talmadge Fans To Start 1933 Baseball Season

Governor Talmadge may be an excellent chief executive and Miss Fort Scott Meador may be an excellent official of the Atlanta Debutante Club but neither of them shone as baseball players Thursday in ceremonies opening Atlanta's 1933 season. Miss Meador, pitching, threw thrice. The governor batting, missed thrice. The umpire James L. Key, who when not calling balls and strikes is mayor of Atlanta. Behind the governor is President Duncan G. Peek, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who braved Miss Meador's wing and the Talmadge bat and tried to catch the season into its official opening.

MEETING CALLED ON PRIMARY DATE

Committee To Reconsider
Action; Green Now Favors
September Vote.

According to a request of Mayor James L. Key, Dr. Samuel Green, chairman of the city democratic executive committee, Thursday night called a meeting of the committee for 8 o'clock tonight at the city hall to reconsider the setting of a date for the primary on May 31 in defiance of a recent act of the Georgia assembly which fixed the date for the primary between September 1 and October 31. Green's action was regarded as virtual assurance that the date will be changed, probably to September 1, and that the confusion of prospective candidates for the 21 positions for which nominations will be made, and of the voters over the prospect of at least two primaries, will be obviated.

In a letter to the mayor, Green pointed out that he and other members of the committee felt that the assembly fixed in the act, if the present committee remained adamant in the May 31 date for the primary, but Green's action was regarded as virtual assurance that the date will be changed, probably to September 1, and that the confusion of prospective candidates for the 21 positions for which nominations will be made, and of the voters over the prospect of at least two primaries, will be obviated.

Bad Weather Prevents Dive for Sea Treasure

NORFOLK, Va., April 13.—(UP)—Bad weather and heavy seas today won the first round in the battle between two expeditions seeking $5,000,000 sunken treasure in the bulk of the Ward Line steamer Merida which sank in 200 feet of water 60 miles off the Virginia coast 22 years ago. The bad weather apparently prevented a half-anticipated naval battle which threatened when trawlers bearing the opposing forces set out for the scene of the sinking Saturday and Sunday.

8 CONVICTS FLEE AT STATE PRISON

Men Steal Auto After Overpowering Guard at Milledgeville.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—Eighteen prisoners at the Georgia state prison farm late today overpowered a guard as they worked in a field and eight of them made their escape. Ten of the state prisoners refused to leave after the gang had commandeered an automobile.

Prison officials reported the eight prisoners had taken the road to Macon after forcing L. K. Stevens, an automobile salesman, from his automobile.

The first car stopped by the escaping convicts was the car of Henry Pearson, of Haskelock. The convicts forced the guard to stop this car. When the convicts held up Stevens they had two shotguns and two pistols, and officials were unable to explain where the extra guns came from. Stevens was demonstrating the car to a young woman, and she was driving when the convicts forced them to stop.

The convicts who escaped are: Ben Lanier, 50, serving 11 years for larceny, Laurens county. Frank White, 15, and brother, Joe White, 18, serving a year each for burglary from Spalding county. Raymond Skipper, 20, serving two years for robbery from Spalding county. H. G. Barnes, 35, serving eight to 10 years, burglary, Chatham county. Roderick Lyons, 44, serving 3 to 4, larceny, Fulton county. Callis Davis, 28, serving a year.

STATE UNIVERSITY 'SHAKEUP' BEGUN

Dismissal Notices Given
All Employees; Some May Not Go Back.

Preparing for reorganization of the university system which is to be effected at the quarterly meeting of the board today, the board of regents has sent dismissal notices to all of its employees. The dismissals are effective July 1. Some of those now in service are to be retained but they are to be given new appointments.

Prominent among the educators not expected to receive a new appointment is Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture.

A full program for complete reorganization of the system will be laid before the regents at the meeting today by Chairman Hughes Spalding. Its adoption is likely to appear Thursday. The board chairman has refused to make known what changes he will recommend but from other sources it was established that the board's program includes the closing

Gen. Adelbert Ames Dies at Ormond Beach

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., April 13.—(AP)—General Adelbert Ames, last surviving Union general of the War Between the States, died at his winter home here tonight. He was 97 years old.

General Ames, crony of John D. Rockefeller, died at his beachfront near here. Neighbors said he appeared in good health until today. The general died at 9:58 p. m., his son-in-law, C. D. Stevens, who lives next door, reported.

Until a few years ago Ames and Rockefeller were almost daily golfing partners here. He was the oldest graduate of the United States Military Academy and, as governor of Mississippi, was the last northern governor of a southern state in the "carpet bag" era.

M. L. LEDFORD, 67, STATE TREASURER, PASSES SUDDENLY

Georgia Official, First Appointed to Post By Russell, Succumbs to Heart Attack.

M. L. Ledford, treasurer of the state of Georgia, died of a heart attack early Friday morning at his residence at 908 Ponce de Leon avenue. He was 67 years of age.

One of the most widely known men in the state, Mr. Ledford had for many years been prominent in state politics, serving as state senator and as grand master of the Georgia lodge of Odd Fellows.

Though he had been in failing health since last November, his death was unexpected. He had continued at his work in the state capitol in the position he had held since December 30, 1931, when he was appointed by former Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late W. A. Speer.

Mr. Ledford was elected to another term at the last elections, defeating G. H. Hamilton by a narrow margin. The election was contested in the Macon convention of the state democratic committee and the decision was rendered in favor of Mr. Ledford.

Born in Union county in 1865, Mr. Ledford achieved prominence in his own community before entering state politics. He was superintendent of the Union county schools and later held the same position in the Grady county schools. He was county attorney of Grady county and was mayor of Cairo.

At the time of his death he was a trustee of the Norman Junior College in Norman Park and had been trustee of the Cairo schools. He was also an elder of the Cairo Baptist church.

He was married to the former Miss Florence Christopher in 1897 and is survived by four daughters, Mrs. C. T. Worthing, Cairo; Mrs. M. M. A. Murray, Louisville, Ga.; Miss Curtis Ledford, mathematics teacher at Norman Park; and Miss Louise Ledford, a teacher at Lyons.

The body will be taken today to Cairo, where funeral services are to be held Saturday.

E. J. Kelly Is Named Mayor of Chicago

CHICAGO, April 13.—(AP)—Edward J. Kelly, 57-year-old civil engineer and democratic leader, was elected mayor of Chicago today by the city council.

Coleman, Wife Before Tragedy

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Coleman are shown above as they appeared shortly after their marriage two years before Mrs. Coleman was found battered to death in a bedroom of their Clayton county home and the young husband was arrested on a murder charge. Under a confession said to have been obtained Thursday by county police, Coleman, who denied knowledge of the crime, may be relieved of a life sentence.

CONFESSIO 'LIE,' BRITON DECLARES

Thornton Repudiates Admission of Guilt in Moscow Trial.

By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON.
MOSCOW, April 13.—(AP)—For five hours tonight L. G. Thornton, one of six British engineers on trial for sabotage and espionage, sat in the witness stand of a packed courtroom and denied, item by item, a confession which he said had been wrung from him by the Russian secret police.

Roginsky, the assistant prosecutor, deluged him with questions and accusations. He read a deposition Thornton made the day after he was arrested stating that all the 27 employees of the British Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company in Russia acted as spies for the British secret service.

"I deny the whole thing," Thornton said, speaking with his lips close to an amplifying microphone so that none of the courtroom crowd could miss what he said.

"They asked me to confess and I confessed. I signed that deposition under the pressure of so many questions. Yes, I wrote it, and now I deny it. When I wrote it I meant

OFFICERS TO URGE FREEDOM AT ONCE FOR R. E. COLEMAN

Tip From Slayer of Mrs.
Sam Henderson Leads Police to Murderer of Young Wife of Atlanta
Supply Co. Worker.

HUSBAND VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES

Stains on Overalls and Attitude on Viewing
Body of Spouse Led to Conviction of Man.

Four long, hard years in a Georgia convict camp have been exacted of Robert E. Coleman, formerly a young art supply company worker in Atlanta, in expiation of wife-murder of which he is entirely innocent, James Starks, negro, Thursday confessed to Fulton county police in admitting the crime, according to police.

Legal steps to have a life sentence lifted from Coleman will be taken immediately, officers announced after listening to a detailed confession in which Starks told of battering Coleman's 19-year-old wife with a poker while her nine-month-old son watched with uncomprehending eyes from a nearby crib.

W. E. Harclerode, East Point attorney, who represents Coleman and who in on Starks' confession, said that he will go to Governor Talmadge "the first thing Friday morning and ask the governor to pardon Mr. Coleman immediately." Harclerode said that "Starks' story fits the facts exactly."

Governor Talmadge said Thursday night that if it is established that Coleman did not commit the murder he will issue a pardon to him without delay.

"As soon as the facts are laid before me I will issue a pardon to Mr. Coleman," the governor said. "I want no innocent man to suffer in Georgia and will always give them the benefit of the doubt."

Police said that the confession removing blame for Mrs. Coleman's death from the shoulders of her husband was obtained on information furnished by Rader Davis, negro, who is under sentence to die on April 27 for the murder of Mrs. Sam Henderson, in Fulton county. Davis relayed to police the story of the murder as told to him by Starks while both negroes were serving time in Henry county, officers said.

Starks was brought to Fulton tower Thursday afternoon from the McDonough camp, where he was serving three-to-five years for burglary, and readily admitted the crime, in the presence of Lieutenant V. A. Wilson, Patrolman E. W. Wilson and Lawrence Camp, of Fairburn, former state attorney-general, it was said.

The information that Davis came to Starks' cell, who was present when Starks signed his confession. The affidavit by Davis was obtained two weeks ago, and Starks was brought to the tower for the first time on Tuesday, being brought back Thursday, Cole said.

Coleman Reported Slaying.
At 7 o'clock on the night of March 14, 1929, Coleman, having returned from a day's work in Atlanta, walked himself into a life sentence by calling Clayton county officers a "damn nigger" and then he was taken to the county jail, where he was held until his wife dead on his arrival at home.

From that moment on, the young Coleman reported slaying.

trust that that nothing could overcome the circumstances against him; today it was humility and resignation. Next morning, he will have been here at this camp for four years. Just a few inches away, big and little motor cars, accommodation and de luxe trains roll by most all of his waking hours and when he sleeps they thunder and roar along carrying other people whose liberties have not been restrained by the so-called "strong arm of the law."

If wholly innocent of the crime for which a jury said he should stay in prison for life—the case against him having been built up on circumstantial evidence—the four years that he has paid on the lifetime debt exacted have not embittered him. This afternoon he was neither outwardly elated nor in any sense inclined to be vindictive.

"I made up my mind," he said to newspapermen a little while after Lawrence Camp had brought him the news of the confession of the negro he says he suspected and pleaded with

Louisiana Petition Demands Long's Removal From Senate

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Chairman George, of the senate elections committee, said today if anything contained in a petition from a score of Louisiana citizens seeking the removal of Senator Long of that state "goes to the right" of the senator to hold his seat a "proper investigation" would be made.

The petition, addressed to Vice President Garner and referred in the routine way to the elections committee, urged a thorough investigation of Long's fitness and listed 11 charges.

Long told newspapermen he had not read the petition and refused to do so immediately in order to reply to it. "I don't know anything about it," he said that he would say.

The petitioners asserted they were ready to furnish witnesses who would establish, among other things, that Senator Long "is personally dishonest, corrupt and immoral," and added his continuance in office "is a reproach to the respectable and law-abiding

Farley Moves To Restore Two-Cent Postal Charge Under Presidential Order

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Postmaster General Farley today recommended in a statement immediate enactment of legislation empowering President Roosevelt to lower or increase postage rates as increasing business or the demands of the postal service may make necessary.

Farley said that restoration of the two-cent rate on all local first class mail—instead of the present three-cent rate—would be the first step recommended to the president if the legislation were enacted.

If the reduction results in increased revenue to the department, Farley said the president "will then have ample ground upon which to direct the restoration of the two-cent postage rate for all first-class mail."

The president's authority would expire on July 1, 1934—the time when the three-cent rate, which went into effect last July 6, is to end.

Parents Bar Door to Prevent Operation to Save Baby Girl

By ROBERT ST. JOHN.
NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—With timbers braced against all the doors and windows, and with boiling water at hand to pour over anyone who might seek entrance, an immigrant couple barricaded themselves in their suburban home today, determined that an operation to save the life of an infant daughter should not be performed.

Neither John Vasco, $15-a-week laborer, nor his hysterical wife could be made to understand that the physician who stood outside was not calling to see two-year-old Helen Vasco, who has a malignant tumor of the eye which threatens her life.

Terror had seized the misunderstanding Vascos, and they only shook their heads with grim determination when it was explained that the doctor was there to attend Helen's twin sister, Anna, who became suddenly ill last night and developed a temperature of 105 degrees.

As the physician, Dr. Michael Bender, gave up his attempt to gain entrance and police said they would take no hand in the case for the time being, a neighbor told how Mrs. Vasco had placed her twin daughters in a small room and had locked the door.

Maybe it was the sight of a policeman Dr. Bender had brought with him that terrified husband and wife.

Maybe it was the crowd of neighbors that gathered.

Or maybe it was fear that it was all just a ruse to get Helen and take her to a hospital—and perhaps remove one of the pretty youngsters' eyes.

That was what had caused all the trouble in the first place.

Recently the child went with her mother to a hospital to visit her father, who was then a patient there. A physician noticed the infected eye. He urged the mother to permit him to remove it.

Mrs. Vasco and her husband, horror-stricken, refused.

"The doctors are crazy," she said later, pointing to Helen playing on the floor.

"She's healthy. She's all right."

Social workers, priests and Dr. Angelo Smith, a Yonkers (N. Y.) eye specialist, argued with her. The specialist told her Helen would have a 50-50 chance of living if the eye were removed; that death was certain unless the operation were performed.

"God gave her to me; if God wills, He will take her away," was the mother's only answer.

The case went to court. A child's court judge issued a ruling permitting the operation. The case was taken to the appellate division of the supreme court. Meanwhile the order was held in abeyance.

The appellate division gave lawyers until 3 p. m. today to submit briefs.

Maurice Zuckert, of White Plains, N. Y., acting as "friend of the court," set forth the contention that "public policy of protecting wards in this state is more important than the peculiar belief or personal convictions of the parents when the life of the child is in danger because of such belief."

The appellate division indicated a decision would be handed down soon.

Meanwhile Dr. Bender was concerned about Helen's twin sister, Anna's condition might be due just to a cold, he said, but the high temperature worried him. He examined her last night and was to see her again today.

When he arrived at the Vascos' home in Hastings, 20 miles up the Hudson, he was greeted by the husband's threat that there was a big pot of water boiling on the stove and that it would be hurled over the first son to force an entrance.

Newspapers Declared Best Medium For Advertisers by Carter Poland

Newspapers are the best medium for advertisers at present, and intelligent use of space will pay greater dividends than at any time in two years, according to Carter D. Poland, nationally known as an advertising expert, who spoke before the Atlanta Advertising Club at its regular meeting at the Ansley hotel Thursday. Mr. Poland is president of the Poland Soap Works, Anniston, Ala.

"Among all advertising mediums I prefer the newspaper," Mr. Poland said. "In my opinion they come nearer being all-purpose mediums than any other. They have the capacity to start cash registers jingling almost before the ink on the advertisements is dry. They are also very effective in institutional advertising, and should be more generally used for that purpose.

"Newspapers render a valuable service to their communities, as was proved during the recent bank holidays. Because of that they deserve the patronage of every firm that sells its goods to the general public."

Playing "unscrupulous advertisers who fill mediums with bunk," Mr. Poland appealed for a more straightforward appeal—the employment of "force in simple, honest things."

To illustrate his point, Mr. Poland used the simple and plain speech of President Roosevelt on the banking situation a few weeks ago, and asserted that brevity should not be the keynote in advertising.

"Newspaper ads should not be brief," he said, "because there is no selling appeal in brevity. Newspaper space should be used liberally and should be used more for institutional advertising. I warn you that the time to advertise is now, because intelligent appeals in newspapers will pay large dividends."

Cummings Will Ask Enforcement Merger

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Attorney-General Cummings said today he would recommend to President Roosevelt consolidation of the prohibition bureau and the bureau of industrial alcohol.

"Railroads," he said, "made the great mistake of sticking to their old-time prices in a period when the prices of other commodities were dropping. Finally, forced to adopt lower fare rates because of motor bus competition, the railroads found a new field which produced a profit. There is no rate war in progress at present—the new and lower rates merely indicate that railroads have awakened and will destroy the bus bargains, just as bus bargains should be destroyed."

The meeting, which was attended by 50 or more advertising men and women, was presided over by Charlton Keen, president of the club.

MISSING ATLANTAN HITCH-HIKING HOME FROM JACKSONVILLE

Leonard Bradley, 24-year-old Southern railway clerk, who lives at 225 Crumley street, was hitch-hiking his way back home from Jacksonville, Fla., Thursday after being mysteriously missing since April 2. A telegram to the family brought relief to an anxious mother and the message that he was on his way to Atlanta.

In the wire from Jacksonville, young Bradley said that he knew nothing about why he was in Jacksonville and was not clear about how long he had been there. He was last seen on Highland avenue a week ago Saturday night and told police on the beat that he had been beaten by robbers but declined their offer to assist him home.

Secret service agents of the railway, Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, from which Bradley graduated, and Atlanta newspapers aided in a south-wide search for the missing clerk.

500 FORESTRY MEN MAY BE SENT HERE

Changes in Assignment of Conservation Corps Planned, Says King.

Major General Edward L. King, commander of the fourth army corps area, announced Thursday that changes in the original assignment of the first battalions of the civilian conservation corps were being contemplated in order that training might be given 500 men at Fort McPherson, General King said that the original order provided that 1,000 men would be trained at Fort Bragg, N. C., 2,100 at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., 3,000 at Fort McClellan, Ala., and 1,000 at Fort Benning, Fla. If 500 are assigned to Fort McPherson, the quotas for the other four mobilization posts in the corps will be reduced slightly.

The army commander emphasized that the army is not recruiting men for the conservation corps. This matter is in the hands of state directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Herman DeLaPerriere, the Georgia director, will leave Monday for Washington, where he will become acquainted with details of the enlistment program. Enlistments are not to be made until his return.

Both Director DeLaPerriere and Otto F. Bading, Atlanta representative of the United States department of labor, said Thursday that they already had thousands of applications for places in the corps.

Enlistments are to be accepted only from single men between the ages of 17 and 25 and these men must have dependents. Also they must assign from $22.50 to $25 of the $30 a month they will receive to these dependents.

Bill To Merge Banks Is Voted in Carolina

RALEIGH, N. C., April 13.—(AP)—Legislative approval of a merger of state banks to form a mammoth statewide commercial banking institution was voted today.

Under the bill banks which have not yet reopened for unrestricted business since the president's bank holiday proclamation may merge to form a new bank if not more than one-third of the depositors of the closed bank nor more than one-third of the stockholders object to the merger plan.

SALE OF TICKETS FOR PONS CONCERT WILL START TODAY

The voice which soars to heights unknown to famous prima donnas in this and other days will be heard in a concert by Lily Pons, French dramatic soprano, when she sings here next Wednesday night at the city auditorium in her first appearance in this section. In addition to her exceptional voice she is noted for her charm and beauty.

Tickets to the concert will go on sale this morning at Davison-Paxon Company and at Rich's, Inc., and a heavy advance demand is expected. Miss Pons will be assisted by Henry Bove, flautist, and Giuseppe Bambascheck, conductor of the Metropolitan opera, will be at the piano.

LEHMAN WILL SIGN MINIMUM WAGE BILLS

ALBANY, N. Y., April 13.—(AP)—Governor Lehman said today that he will sign the Wald minimum wage bill under which the state may fix the wages paid women and children. President Roosevelt yesterday called 13 other industrial states to study New York's recently enacted minimum wage bills as a pattern for action by them.

The governor may also sign the Desmond bill, an "inimum wage measure, with penalties less severe. The Desmond bill also includes men. One advantage in signing both measures would be that if the constitutionality of the Wald bill is successfully attacked, the Desmond bill might hold up under court tests because it is an emergency measure. The Wald bill is intended as a permanent law.

ROOSEVELT'S ACTION IMPRESSES POLAND

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's prompt handling of emergency measures has made a deep impression in Poland.

This word was given today by Stanislaus Patek, the new Polish ambassador, who was in Warsaw during the early weeks of the Roosevelt administration and recently returned to Washington.

"It was thought in Poland that Americans, being accustomed to prosperity, would have more difficulties than other nations in bearing the results of the world-wide economic depression," the ambassador said in an interview. "But President Roosevelt's forceful and statesmanlike action and his faith in a satisfactory solution have effectively dispelled that opinion."

Kellogg's WHEAT KRISPIES

POPPED

YOU know what a wonderful food whole wheat is. But haven't you often wished that it could be just a little more exciting?

Wheat with pop-corn flavor!
Just try Kellogg's Wheat Krispies, the new wheat cereal that tastes like pop-corn! It's as different as day and night. The entire wheat flake is actually popped.

It's impossible to describe it. You must taste it. Try some plain before you add milk or cream. Extra fresh in the double WAXTITE bag. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

All of the wheat popped ready to eat!

STOP GUESSING

WHY NOT decide right now to stop experimenting with your bakings?
You can have unflinching success, no matter what you bake, with the flour that's been the standard of the South for over 50 years. Ballard's Obelisk Flour is of uniform first quality. It's made of the choice, plump grains of selected soft wheat, and it's this superior grain-ingredient that brings new whiteness and tenderness to your bakings. Breads and rolls are lighter and fluffier, made with Obelisk Flour. Pastries are flakier. Cakes have new flavor and finer texture. In addition, this flour requires less shortening, less kneading, and keeps bakings fresh longer. Why not use Ballard's Obelisk, you'll have better biscuits, pies, cakes, bread, rolls, muffins or waffles! Grocers everywhere sell Obelisk. Ask for it by name. Look for the famous Obelisk trade-mark on every package!

THREE MEALS A DAY

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES

by Sally Saver

LET'S TAKE A PAGE FROM THE FRENCH COOK BOOKS ON SALAD RECIPES

The French, bless their souls, who were the first to raise cooking to the perfection of a fine art, have known about salads for centuries. While we've fumed and fussed with converting fruit into flowers to rest somewhat dejectedly on lettuce leaves, and have spent mornings stuffing dates and prunes and figs with elaborate concoctions, the peasants along the Seine have gone peacefully on mixing salads that are so simple and so delicious they fill us all with envy.

Not that the more elaborate salads do not have their place. They do. For luncheons and dinners they are grand. But for every day let's take a tip from the French and serve something simple. Little touches here and there can make the garden variety salads quite as attractive as the fussy ones.

Try varying the good old lettuce-and-tomato combinations by cutting the tomatoes in quarters or eighths rather than slices. Rub a bit of onion around the inside of a mixing bowl; then put in crisp fresh lettuce leaves or romaine. Add the tomatoes and plenty of French dressing. Then with a fork and spoon, gently mix them all together. Don't stir; lift the ingredients carefully up and down until they are thoroughly saturated with dressing. Serve the salad right in the mixing bowl, and let everyone help himself. You'll find the flavor a hundred times better.

Another simple salad combination for spring is chicory and water cress with chopped egg, and beet. Use endive or tender young dandelion leaves or fresh spinach, if you like them. Another way to dress up a simple salad is to serve it with crisp salty crackers. Use flaky soda crackers, saltina wafers, cheese chips, or those new and ultra-smart little morsels known as "appetizers." These are flavored with caraway seed, some with celery seed, and others with poppy seed. Whatever cracker you select, be sure to have plenty. For variety, try them toasted sometimes, or melt a bit of American cheese on each one. The dressing, of course, can make or mar the finest salad in captivity. One of the best French dressings is made with the following recipe:

French Dressing.
One teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon onion juice, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1/2 cup salad oil.
Mix dry ingredients and add to salad oil. Add onion juice and vinegar and stir or shake in a sealed bottle or jar until the mixture begins to thicken. A small piece of ice added before stirring makes it thicken at once. Store in refrigerator in airtight jar.

The following sweet-sour dressing is also particularly good for green salads:

Sweet-Sour Dressing.
One-half cup sugar, 1/2 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 table-

THE DOUBLE-ACTING BAKING POWDERBudweiser MALT*LIVES UP TO ITS FAMOUS NAME*335 ANHEUSER-BUSCH ST. LOUIS*3 lbs. in the Big Red Can*LIGHT OR DARK*Ancient Sacred Rite Revived by Pope Pius

VATICAN CITY, April 13.—(AP)

A pope carried the blessed sacrament from its tabernacle in the Sistine chapel to the Pauline chapel for the first time since 1870 today. There it will be exposed until tomorrow, Good Friday.

Thus Pius XI, on the 1900th anniversary of Christ's institution of the eucharist, restored to the Roman Catholic world one of its most picturesque and traditional ceremonies.

The ritual inaugurated the three most sacred days of holy week. It was one of several symbolic acts abandoned by Pius' predecessors through the past 63 years. He is reviving them as part of an extraordinary holy year program he initiated April 1.

FLORIDA BEER BILLSDELAYED IN HOUSE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 13.—

Florida's legislature today completed action on a bill to hold up the sale of tax certificates until after the close of the assembly session, but delayed consideration of wine and beer proposals, on the calendar for the day.

The house passed 88 to 1, the senate tax certificate measure and sent it to the governor for his signature. Later that body considered briefly two banking bills, but postponed further debate on them until tomorrow.

Members of the house said informally the reason the wine and beer legislation was not taken up was for the lack of time.

The senate received a bill to take one cent of the gasoline tax from the road department for schools to be distributed on the basis of population without disturbing other gas tax legislation.

The upper branch also saw a measure dumped into the hopper for a chain store tax, the second such bill introduced at this session. It carried the same rate of taxation as the 1931 law, which was held invalid by the United States supreme court, but without the illegal provisions provided for increased taxation of stores whose chains extend to more than one county.

Hot Noodle Ring.
Three cups fine or broad noodles, cooked and drained; 5 egg yolks, well beaten; 5 egg whites, beaten stiff; 1/2 cup cream, or rich milk; 5 tablespoons melted butter. Salt and pepper to taste. Chopped green peppers if desired.

Noodle Nests.
Drop fine noodles into boiling water and cook one minute. Drain, place the noodles in a wire noodle nest, shake and fry in hot deep fat until a golden brown. Remove from the frying basket to brown paper to drain. Fill while hot with any such creamed food as goldenrod, eggs, creamed shrimp, mushrooms, etc.

Italian Spaghetti.
Three cups spaghetti cooked, 1-3/4 cups onion juice, 2 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, few grains cayenne pepper, 3 tablespoons olive oil, 1/2 cup mushrooms, 1-2 cups strained tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated strong cheese.

Add the mushrooms to the hot oil, fry three minutes. Blend in the flour and gradually add the tomatoes. Let come to the boil, season, stir in the cooked and drained spaghetti, sprinkle with the cheese, and serve very hot.

Bolognese Spaghetti.
One-fourth cup olive oil, 1/4 pound, each, ground lean beef, pork and veal; 1/4 pound chopped bologna, 1/3 cup minced onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, 1/4 teaspoon finely chopped garlic, 1 sprig parsley, minced, 1/4 pound fresh mushrooms, peeled and cut, 3/4 cup tomato puree or sauce, 1/2 box spaghetti, 1 teaspoon each lemon juice and salt, grated strong cheese.

Brown the meats in the hot olive oil. Add pepper, onion, garlic and parsley and cook till lightly browned. Add the mushrooms, tomato puree or sauce, 1/4 cup water and the seasonings. Simmer 1-2 hours.

Cook spaghetti in boiling water till tender, drain. Combine with the sauce, add the lemon juice, salt and a dash of pepper, simmer together 10 minutes, pile onto a chop plate and sprinkle generously with the cheese. Some people prefer to pile the spaghetti on the plate, then pour the sauce over it and serve the cheese separately. However served, it should be very, very hot.

Macaroni a la King.
Four ounces (1-1/4 lb.) macaroni uncooked, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 slice onion, 1-4 green pepper, chopped, 1-4 pimiento, chopped, 1-2 cup onion flour, 1 cup milk.

Cook the macaroni in plenty of boiling salted water until tender, drain, saving half cup of the water to make the sauce with, later on. Rinse macaroni with cold water, if so directed on the box. Put macaroni into buttered baking dish, cover with sauce made as follows:

In a hot frying pan, cook chopped onions, mushrooms and pimientos in 2 tablespoons of butter until tender. Remove the vegetables from the pan, leaving the liquid for the sauce. Stir flour to a smooth paste and add, together with the milk to the vegetable liquid in the pan. Bring slowly to a boil and add to the chopped vegetables.

Pour white sauce and vegetables over the macaroni and sprinkle a little grated cheese on the top. Brown in a moderate oven.

Noodle Chili.
One pound ground round of beef, 1 large onion, sliced, 1-2 cup tomatoes, 2 cups cooked noodles, 2 cups canned kidney beans, 1-2 teaspoon each of sugar, salt and chili powder.

Brown the beef quickly in a tablespoon of hot fat in a hot frying pan. Add the onion and tomatoes. Then add beans and noodles together with a cupful of the water in which noodles were cooked, then the sugar, salt and chili powder. Cover tightly and simmer one hour.

Creamed Noodles With Eggs and Cheese.
One cup fine noodles, 1 tablespoon fat, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1-4 teaspoon salt and paprika, 2 hard-cooked eggs, cracker crumbs for the top.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water for about 5 minutes or until tender. Make a white sauce of the fat, flour and milk. When the sauce comes to the boiling point add the noodles and get very hot. Remove from fire and add the cheese and coarsely cut eggs. Season and mix well, pour into buttered casserole or baking dish, top with cracker crumbs, brown quickly in hot oven and serve immediately.

Special Rites Here To Mark Observance of Good Friday

Organs will peal and reverent voices will lift in song in many Atlanta churches today in commemoration of the Savior's journey to Calvary and his agony on the cross as the city joins the civil and world in observance of Good Friday.

Beginning at noon service at St. Philip's cathedral, the various services will continue through the night of worship. Ceremonies will feature sermons, cantatas, songs and eulogies dedicated to the love of the Christ for the world.

St. Philip's will observe the day in a three-hour service beginning at 12 o'clock noon. Dean Raimundo de Ovies will direct the service, which will be based on "The Seven Last Words in the Life of Christ."

Arthur Davis, organist, will play the hymns for the service.

Rabbi Harry H. Epstein will speak on "Passover Reinterpreted" at a special Pas-over service at the Ahavath Achim synagogue at 8 o'clock tonight. Appropriate holiday songs will be given by Cantor Coleman Spivack and the speaking service will be in English.

Oakland City Methodist church will observe Good Friday with an address by the pastor, the Rev. V. L. Bray, at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Lighted crosses will illumine the church for the prayer service and the sermon will be followed by administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Service at St. Luk... One of the most inspiring of services will be given at St. Luke's Episcopal church at 8 o'clock tonight with the presentation of St. John Stainer's famous "Crucifixion." Several of the city's best-known singers will take part, including Miss Minna Hecker, soprano; Mrs. J. C. Brown, contralto; C. E. Drummond, tenor, and Coleman Kimbro, basso, supported by a full choir of voices. The service has been prepared by Hugh Hodgson, organist and choir master, and Miss Mozelle Horton will play the piano scores.

Bishop John W. Moore, of Dallas, Texas, will preach on "The Son of Man Is Betrayed" at 10:30 o'clock this morning at St. Mark Methodist, and again tonight at 7:30 o'clock, which service will be followed by administration of the Lord's Supper. T. Stanley Perry, well-known soloist, will sing "When to the Lily Fair" at the morning service.

All Saints' church will observe the day with a 20-minute meditation service at 6 o'clock tonight.

Catholic Church Services. The mass of the pre-sanctified will be observed this morning at the Immaculate Conception Catholic church. Stations of the cross will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon and the day's services will close with the Tenebrae at 8 o'clock tonight.

Sacred Heart Catholic church will hold stations of the cross at 3 o'clock this afternoon and another service at 8 o'clock tonight.

Early communion will be held at the Druid Hills Methodist church this morning and a special service for young people will close the observance at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Several of the city's outstanding ministers will take part in a three-hour service at Peachtree Christian church, beginning at 12 o'clock noon.

The Rev. E. L. Flanagan, pastor of the West End Presbyterian church, will start a three-hour devotional service at noon. A reception of the communicants' class and the annual congregational meeting will be held tonight at the Covenant Presbyterian church.

NEGRO CONFESSES KILLING OF WOMAN

Freedom at Once Urged for R. E. Coleman, Serving for Crime.

husband, 22 years of age in 1929, found himself involved in a mesh of circumstances which damned him in the eyes of a coroner's jury and a superior court jury, in spite of his vehement denials that he had performed or had knowledge of the crime.

Unfortunately for Coleman, officers found him wearing a pair of overalls bearing what appeared to be human bloodstains, although Coleman claimed that they had been stained otherwise.

The story as related by Starks in his confession to Fulton county police is a simple one, yet frightful in its details and its consequences on an

Vacation Trips in Constitution's Contest

Other prizes are similar trips and a week's stay at the DeSoto or the Savannah hotel at Savannah, and two scholarships for young men and women at the University of Georgia and Wesleyan College. From April 16 to August 6 The Constitution's photo section will carry pictures of Georgia scenes and personages. Contestants will make scrapbooks of the pictures, and the nearest and most original layout will win. The contest closes on August 6. Details of the contest will appear in the photo section every Sunday.

alleged innocent man. Starks told police that at the time of the murder he was working at Biggers' dairy, three-quarters of a mile from the small home of the Coleman's, which was a quarter of a mile from the main Jonesboro-Atlanta highway, four miles from the Fulton county line.

"I went over to Mrs. Coleman's, and found her there by herself, except for the baby," Starks told police. "I talked to her, and she ordered me to leave the place. I asked her, 'If I leave, will you say anything about my coming here?'"

Gives Details of Crime.

"She said she wouldn't say I had been there, but I got suspicious, and told her she would tell on me," Starks said.

"Mrs. Coleman picked up a chair, and told me to beat it. She threw the chair at me, and I grabbed a poker and beat her in the head. She dropped, and I left her there, writhing and twisting. I didn't know I had killed her 'til later."

Physicians said that Mrs. Coleman had been dead 10 hours when officers reached the scene of the killing. In the meantime, the baby lay helpless in its crib, crying for a mother who was beyond responding to its pleas. Young Coleman, coming home to find the bedroom a bloody shambles, was horrified into a stoical attitude which impressed officers the wrong way, it appeared.

Police, seeking to shock the young husband into a confession, forced him to accompany them to the funeral parlor and view the wife's body. That proved too much for the young husband, carrying the sorrow of his wife's death and the suspicion of murdering her, and he broke down, giving way to tears and bitter denials.

Coleman's Story Recounted.

When arrested, Coleman's overalls appeared to have been washed carefully to remove all of the stains, according to statements of officers at the time of the investigation. A coroner's jury composed of L. C. Lawrence, foreman; P. J. Lamb, G. R. Dukes, E. Smith Jr., J. W. Freeman and W. N. Parker ordered Coleman held for the grand jury, by finding that Mrs. Effie Coleman "came to her death from a blow received on the head inflicted with a heavy iron weapon in the hands of Robert E. Coleman."

The Constitution in 1929 related that Coleman told the arresting officers that his wife "seemed extremely happy" when he left in the morning for work. His story of the parting was as follows: "I didn't have time for breakfast. She was preparing it for me, but I had to leave early. Effie put her arms around me and walked to the front of the house with me. I kissed her and left for work. That was the last time I saw her alive. I noticed nothing wrong when I left."

The caretaker of a filling station near the home said that Coleman waited an hour for transportation to Atlanta, and seemed "uneasy" about something. "What's the matter, have you and your wife had a fuss?" the caretaker said he asked Coleman. "No. Nothing like that; we get along fine," Coleman is said to have replied.

"You're here rather early, aren't you?" the caretaker persisted. "You usually do not come around at this time." "Oh, I'm anxious to get to town," Coleman is said to have answered.

Major Claude C. Smith, solicitor-general of the Stone Mountain circuit, who prosecuted Coleman, Thursday night said that "this is the first I have heard of a confession in the case."

Major Smith said that "the confession will be given due consideration. All we want to establish is the truth, and if a man is innocent of a crime, I do not want him to be penalized for it any more than anyone else would desire that the innocent should suffer. At the same time, I do not want to let a faker put anything over." Major Smith said that he will begin an investigation of the case this morning.

officers to arrest and prosecute. "To take it standing up, I felt like something would happen some day. I knew I was innocent."

"Murderers," Captain J. H. Perkins, in charge of this camp, had observed before Coleman came from his quarters to be interviewed, "are usually high tempered, fretful and they don't sleep well at night."

"Coleman has been one of the best prisoners we ever had. He is usually among the first to go to sleep at night and he sleeps soundly. He eats well. He's certainly been a model prisoner."

Then the warden, after explaining how the criminal type is inclined to bicker when at hard labor, added: "I've seen him driving a tractor in the hottest sun and he was just as even tempered as he is now. Nobody's ever had to speak a cross word to him."

Warden Perkins, a medium-sized fellow who has charge of the 80-odd prisoners here and looks little like the average convict boss, said that Coleman came from a good family of people but "unfortunately, got into trouble." The warden declined to express an opinion as to Coleman's guilt or innocence but said his conviction was obtained on circumstantial evidence.

Coleman, at first, said he didn't want to say anything about the case but bit by bit he told his story—just as dated today over what happened and how he came to be convicted as he was when arrested. He said he suspected the negro, Starks, and begged Sheriff E. L. Adams, at Jonesboro, to "prosecute him."

Guards were asked if Coleman had ever discussed the case with them after he had told newspapermen he had never sought a parole.

"About six weeks ago," one of them said, "when there was a lot in the papers about the Henderson and McGee killings. That seemed to arouse him and when they were arrested he seemed to feel like something might turn up that would win him his freedom."

It was Rader Davis, convicted in one of these cases, who told Fulton county police Thursday that Starks had confessed to killing Mrs. Coleman when the two negroes were doing a stretch together.

Coleman hasn't seen his nearly five-year-old baby, Robert Coleman Jr., since the day of his wife's funeral.

"He's in Atlanta with my wife's sister, Mrs. Willie Graden. I hear from him. He's been getting along all right. If I do get out, I'll go back to my mother and sister and take the little fellow with me. They all need me to help make a living."

Coleman's mother is Mrs. V. H. Coleman, who lives at 206 East Mercer avenue, College Park.

At first, he said Mrs. Graden had believed him innocent, but "I haven't heard from any of my wife's people since I was sent out here." His wife, 17, when he married her, lived four miles from where he did and they had been "seeing each other for about six or eight months before we married."

If there is any such anomaly in human philosophies, Robert Coleman is a simple fatalist. One gathers, as he haltingly answered questions, that he was overcome with a fear that he couldn't combat the forces of the law which charged him with the murder of his wife. Any one also is impressed again that he will go on and take life as simple folk who are out of prison do—drawing the curtain over the four years given to society in payment for a debt another now says he did not owe.

Sheriff Adams, at Jonesboro, however, is not so certain about the negro's confession. He will go to Atlanta in the morning to see Starks and to confer with others before he decides what to do. Meantime, attorneys will be moving toward the office of the chief executive to plead for early clemency for Coleman.

Adams admitted that the evidence offered by the state against Coleman was "largely circumstantial" and that Starks was "a bad negro." He did not recall that Coleman ever tried to get him to arrest the negro and have him prosecuted for the crime.

"If the evidence was circumstantial," Sheriff Adams was asked, "what was the strongest link in it?" "I don't know exactly," he replied.

CONGRESS SPEEDS ROOSEVELT PLANS

plan in the agricultural price-lifting legislation; a plan that Secretary Wallace didn't want.

The bill has to go back to the house, however, already having been passed there minus the discretion that the senate insists also should be vested in the secretary of agriculture to assure production cost and profit.

So tonight there was speculation as to whether and how the Rooseveltian ranks might move to squelch the first departure from the course set by the White House.

Conferences to adjust differences between the two branches must await senate completion of the bill, along with the mortgage refinancing feature just sanctioned by the house. It's hard to tell when the senate will choose to vote, but it may come tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the legislators have for perusal the plan recommended by Mr. Roosevelt in a special message "to protect small home owners from foreclosure and to relieve them of the burden of excessive interest and principal payment incurred in better times."

He termed it "urgently necessary" to promote economic recovery. The legislation was started on its way simultaneously with reading of the message on Capitol Hill.

Contrary to last night's draft—it placed a $10,000 value limit on the dwellings that can be helped instead of twice that sum.

Committees at Work.

Congress in general concentrated on the farm and mortgage propositions through the day; but individuals and committees at the same time labored on the vast inter-related schemes for ways and means to integrate recovery. Here and there cropped out the agitation for currency inflation, but without solid results.

Snapshots would show:

On relief: The house banking committee study of the $500,000,000 Wagner bill for grants to states neared completion. Senator Costigan, democrat, Colorado, testifying his confidence there that the bond market early would absorb the amount contemplated, and that it was imperatively needed before the first of May.

On banking: Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, disclosed his committee has agreed as one on a reform bill, substantially retaining its debated feature for a two billion dollar deposit insurance fund.

On securities regulation: Senatorial committee draft revising administration recommendations virtually made ready for attempts to harmonize with house committee version; it being decided to retain the contested section allowing exemption of government, state and municipal bonds from the full publicity rule.

On power: The president to declare arms embargoes: The house democratic leadership finally was able to get it up for debate; differences that materialized seemed not to threaten expected passage tomorrow.

On federal economy: Procedure to slash expenses by the agriculture department and army and navy gathered headway; with both opposition and

Odell Boyles Indicted In Extortion Attempt

Odell Carlyle Boyles, young parachute rigger, was indicted Thursday by the federal grand jury on charges of using the mails in an attempt to extort $20,000 from Joseph F. Cannon Sr., millionaire towel king, of Concord, N. C., under threats of kidnapping Joseph F. Cannon Jr., his son, and Anne Cannon Reynolds II, a grandchild.

The indictment contains three counts and charges that threatening letters making demands for the money were mailed on November 1, November 18, and November 27 of last year. Boyles was taken by government agents on Virginia avenue in Hapeville where the money was "planted" in a vacant house. Boyles is in Fulton tower. His wife, who was arrested at the same time and ordered held for the grand jury under bond, was not indicted by the jury Thursday. No date for the trial has been set.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old. Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, stimulation does more than "dosing." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

"HELLO, JEAN. Tell me, what is Helen French's number? I want to invite her to the party tonight."

"I know she'd love to go, Mac, but you can't reach her by telephone. The Frenchs have had their 'phone taken out. Too bad, isn't it?"

The younger crowd plan their parties with a minimum of formality. A few telephone calls and a jolly evening's all arranged. When Helen learned of what a good time she'd missed, the "economy" of doing without a telephone ceased to be a virtue in the French household. Doing without a telephone means missing many happy gatherings and much inconvenience. Order yours today. The cost is so small that it doesn't pay to try to do without it.

ROME COMMISSIONERS' RECALL MOVE BEGUN

Citizens Sign Petition Asking Recall Election on 5 City Officials.

ROME, Ga., April 13.—Signed by 146 citizens, a petition to recall five commissioners of the city of Rome was filed with Clerk E. L. Cantrell this morning. The commissioners named in the petition are Chairman A. P. McKay, Chairman Pro Tem, J. P. Reid, A. D. Littlejohn, Ralph Trimm and D. H. Kay. The petition cited a number of reasons for recall, "inefficiency in office, failure to conduct the affairs of the city government upon businesslike basis, failure to elect a qualified recorder and an attempt to retain Recorder H. L. Latham, who, the petition claims, is not qualified to hold office, and because the commissioners are conducting the affairs of the city in such a manner as to destroy the confidence of citizens in the government of the city."

The five men named were successful members of the "new" ticket which won a majority of the nine places on the commission from the old regime last fall. A. P. McKay, chairman of the commission, and one of the five men named in the recall petition, issued a statement denying the allegations. In a three month period the present commission has reduced operating expenses of the city over $80,000 and has cut the assessment rate of real estate 10 per cent as well as making adjustments on real estate assessments amounting to another 10 per cent.

According to the charter of Rome if 100 qualified voters sign a petition the clerk is forced to open the registration books, which one-fourth of the qualified voters must sign within 30 days stating they want a recall election. If the election is held and any officer is recalled he may become a candidate for the same office in a general election to name a new officer to the vacancy. One thousand two hundred and nineteen voters must register in the city books before an election can be called.

WOODMEN OF GEORGIA MEET TODAY IN MACON

MACON, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—Woodmen of the World converged in Macon tonight for the opening of the Georgia head camp's convention tomorrow with D. E. Bradshaw, national president, in attendance.

The meetings will be held in the Macon auditorium, starting at 10 a. m. tomorrow with R. G. Plunkett, of Macon, national director, opening the ceremonies.

Friday afternoon women will compete in drill exercises and the convention dance will be held Friday night. Delegates will parade through downtown streets en route to the dance hall.

Among the high officials of the organization attending are: T. E. Patterson, of Omaha, Neb., national vice president; Farn Newberry, of Little Rock, Ark.; W. E. Mooney, of Chicago, and Walter M. Crawford, of Birmingham, Ala., national directors. T. L. Bennett, state manager of the W. O. W., and Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, state manager of the Woodman Circle.

Recorder and Police Disagree On Savannah 'Gambling Device'

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 13.—The police department and the recorder of the city of Savannah differ on what is a gambling device. The difference arose when the police anti-gambling squad, headed by Lieutenant Clancy, arrested Maurice Sullivan, proprietor of a recreation hall, and C. M. Crowl, an employee, on the charge of operating a gambling device and gambling.

It was alleged Crowl had a machine in which he held the skill was required to win, but which the police say is merely a matter of chance. The recorder held with the defendants and dismissed them. The recorder declared it had been shown him that the game was one of skill and that lady luck did not figure in it. The police are not satisfied with this finding and declare they will arrest anyone they catch playing the same game in the future.

This is one of the first results of the recent raid on gambling devices staged by the police on the complaint of Mayor Thomas Gamble. The machines were not operated for some time until it was decided to make a test case. The machine is licensed by the city and the defendants say the city has recognized the machine as a game of skill, by making it taxable.

APPROVAL IS GIVEN TO FARM AID BILL

By MARY FERGUSON.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(UP)—The democratic leadership in the house today beat back an assault of the currency inflation bill, and passed President Roosevelt's $2,000,000,000 farm mortgage refinancing program bill.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, the administration did not fare so well. The senate defied the White House's wishes, and adopted an amendment to the farm relief bill, which would permit the secretary of agriculture arbitrarily to fix prices high enough to assure "a reasonable profit" on domestically-produced farm products.

House action on the mortgage refinancing completed its legislation designed to carry out Mr. Roosevelt's farm program. It already has passed the farm relief bill which includes the domestic allotment plan, the cotton option program and the marginal land leasing provision.

The inflationists proposed to substitute the Frazier plan—calling for an $8,000,000,000 expansion of the currency—for the farm mortgage refinancing program. Formal motion was made for the substitution, but Speaker Rainey ruled against it.

Then the vote was quickly taken on the refinancing bill itself, which was adopted 387 to 12. This measure provides for issue of $2,000,000,000 in federal land bank bonds.

The senate continued its struggle today with a farm bill that includes both the relief program designed to raise commodity prices and the farm mortgage refinancing plan. A vote on the combined bill is expected before the end of the week.

The Norris minimum price amendment, which passed by a vote of 41 to 41, was not in the bill as drafted by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The senate agriculture committee attached it to the farm bill after extensive hearings.

The effect of the amendment, if it survives until final action on the bill, would be to place additional power in the hands of the secretary of agriculture. It could operate through the minimum price provision or through the domestic allotment plan, including its processing tax—according to which he thought better adapted to any given situation.

Here's Procedure For Loan Relief

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—If you are hard pressed to meet mortgage payments on your home, and it doesn't exceed $10,000 in value, this is the way the Roosevelt plan for refinancing would operate:

Insurance company lends a $6,000 mortgage—for example—on owner's home now valued at $9,000, on which the interest rate is 6 per cent or above but owner is unable to pay.

Either the insurance company or the owner has to approach the "Home-Owner's Corporation" offices for refinancing.

The insurance company will accept in exchange for the mortgage, bonds issued by the corporation on which the government guarantees 4 per cent interest. In return for the sure interest the company may agree to mark down the debt to $5,000.

The corporation then gives the owner a new mortgage with a face value of $5,000 payable in 15 years at 3 per cent interest.

In addition the corporation may advance him cash for payment of taxes and necessary repairs and cover it with the mortgage.

In the discretion of the Home Loan bank board, the owner may be given a three-year moratorium on his debt. The owner could make his payments monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually.

MAN IS FOUND DYING ON GEORGIA HIGHWAY

PERRY, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—A man identified by naturalization papers found in his person as Otto Peiper, 60, was fatally injured early today on a highway six miles south of here.

Officers said they believed a truck loaded with string beans hit the man as the beans were strewn about the road at the scene.

The naturalization papers showed Peiper took the oath of allegiance to the United States in 1900 in Hamilton county, Ohio. He lived a few minutes after being found. His relatives are being sought.

LOWER RATES SOUGHT AT VALDOSTA HEARING

Attorney Attacks Service and Demand Charges of Power Company.

VALDOSTA, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—Omer W. Franklin, Valdosta city attorney, opening the presentation of the city's case on power and light rates before the public service commission holding a hearing here today, attacked the service and demand charges of the Georgia Power and Light Company, which serves the vicinity.

Franklin also attacked the statement that reductions on income on investments of the company were too small to justify revision of rates, as contended by the power company.

The commission held a similar hearing at Waycross yesterday.

Mother Writes F. D. R. To Find Missing Son

ATHENS, Ga., April 13.—Mrs. Bessie Chandler, mother of 13-year-old Norton Chandler, missing from his home here since April 4, tonight wrote President Franklin D. Roosevelt to convey to President Roosevelt the following appeal:

"Mr. President: My boy, Norton Chandler, aged 13, is missing, having disappeared from his home here since April 4. I have appealed to the police, newspapers and to other agencies to help find him. Won't you help me? Possibly there are hundreds of other boys missing from their homes. Won't you make a public appeal for my boy, as well as other boys, who have in a moment of error left their homes to come back and give their mothers a 'new deal' of happiness?"

REV. ED F. COOK NAMED TO MACON PASTORATE

Bishop John M. Moore tonight announced the calling of Rev. Ed F. Cook, of Vineville Methodist church at Macon, to the pastorate of the Mulberry Street Methodist church of the same city.

The Rev. Silas Johnson, of the Thomasville Methodist church, was elected to succeed the Rev. Mr. Cook at Vineville church.

The Rev. Mr. Cook will succeed the late Dr. Carl Gregory who died Sunday from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

The Rev. Joseph S. Cook, of Waxahatchie, Texas, will be transferred to Thomasville to fill the post vacated by the Rev. Mr. Johnson.

Bishop Moore, who makes appointments for the North and South Georgia conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, announced his selection early tonight.

He praised highly the work of the pastors he will transfer.

The Rev. Mr. Cook will be brought from the Central Texas conference to Thomasville. Bishop Moore said he had made a splendid record in Waxahatchie.

FINANCES ARRANGED FOR AUGUSTA SCHOOLS

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—Richmond county board of education officials announced today that arrangements have been completed to finance local schools through January 1, 1934.

A query regarding an extra session of the state legislature in which it was stated that the schools of the county may not be able to open next September.

Mrs. L. C. Levy, president of the central council of the Parent-Teachers Association, the author of a resolution which is scheduled to be presented to the state association asking aid for schools said: "The P. T. A. doesn't want a beer session tied in with the school plan."

WELCH FOUND GUILTY, GETS FIVE-YEAR TERM

MOULTREE, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—Dewey Welch, 24, was found guilty here tonight on a charge of being accessory before the fact in the $1,000 robbery of the Norman Banking Company, Norman Park, Ga., and was sentenced to 5 to 8 years imprisonment.

The sentence given Dewey Welch was the same as that given his brother, Mote Welch, who was convicted of taking part in the robbery. James J. Welch, indicted with Mote Welch as one of the principals in the robbery, pleaded guilty several days ago. He was sentenced to 5 to 10 years also.

The verdict in Dewey Welch's case was returned tonight, 24 hours after the jury received the case, and after it had reported inability to reach agreement. Judge W. E. Thomas sent the jurors back when they reported, telling them to "reason together in an effort to arrive at the truth in this case and avoid the necessity of an expensive second trial, which would also inconvenience a large number of witnesses."

Dewey Welch sought to establish an alibi, presenting several witnesses who said they talked with him in Albany the day the Norman Banking Company was robbed.

Southern Seeking TO CUT FARE IN MISS.

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., April 13.—Martha Berry, founder and director of Berry Schools, for mountain children, today was notified by the University of Georgia, Athens, that it was bestowing the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon her at the commencement exercises on June 19.

This latest honor to Miss Berry is the third honorary degree bestowed upon her in recognition, as ex-President Coolidge said, "of building out of nothing a great institution of learning."

Previously the University of Georgia had given degrees to Miss Berry. Dr. Clifton D. Gray, president of Bates college, has written a citation to Miss Berry said, "It gives me personal pleasure to extend this invitation in recognition of the invaluable service you have rendered the mountain boys and girls of the south."

Miss Berry earlier this year had been awarded the Colonial Dames' biennial medal for distinguished service for her work in establishing the famous Georgia institution for education of country boys and girls.

Pre-Easter Snow Storms Bring Death and Misery to East, West

BOSTON, April 13.—(AP)—A raging pre-Easter storm, leaving in its wake much as three feet of snow to-day, brought death and untold property destruction to New England.

The deaths of four men, three of them in motor accidents and injuries to many other persons were attributed to the storm.

Power lines, telephone and telegraph systems, shade trees, and fruit orchards went down under the weight of the heavy clinging snow. Sprouting crops on farms were snow-blanketed and roads and streets blocked.

In the howling wind, the yawl boat of a drifter, westward four miles west of Mattituck Point in Long Island sound, and a Boston ferry boat were slapped violently against her berth, snapping off pilings and shaking up passengers. Damage to wires, poles and trees was caused in a belt running westward from the coast across much of Maine, New Hampshire, northern Massachusetts and Vermont.

The snowfall was heavy in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts. The heaviest fall was 36 inches, reported from the vicinity of Keene, N. H.

WESTERN STATES HIT BY RAIN, SLEET AND SNOW

KANSAS CITY, April 13.—(AP)—A pre-Easter storm of rain, sand, snow and sleet was driven eastward across the southwestern plains today by a lashing wind.

Some crop damage resulted. To-night rapidly falling temperatures carried a threat to budding fruit trees.

The northern panhandle of Texas, northwestern Oklahoma and parts of Kansas experienced one of the worst sandstorms in history, the wind velocity at times reaching from 40 to 50 miles an hour.

Motor cars were stalled. The sky was so darkened artificial light was required in many homes. Transcontinental planes were grounded over part of the Dallas-El Paso route.

Dust and sand drifted in flocks. There was no effect on the river. There are only two generally recognized substitutes which actually stimulate a sluggish liver to increase its production of bile. Sargol Soft Mass Pills contain both of them.

ARMED IOWAN ROUTS 80 IRATE FARMERS

LE MARS, Iowa, April 13.—(AP)—Andrew McClintock routed 80 farmers today with a shotgun after they stormed his farm and demanded a rent note McClintock held against Alford Mollen.

Sheriff R. E. Rippey advised McClintock to use force if necessary and when he produced his shotgun the crowd dispersed.

McClintock previously had offered to settle for half the face value of the note.

Frame-up' Is Charged By Williams at Trial

Lewis Williams, former intelligence officer of the department of internal revenue, who is on trial in district court here on charges of accepting a bribe from Clyde L. King while investigating income tax evasion charges against King, remained on the witness stand for the entire day Thursday in the closing phases of his trial.

He ended his direct testimony to the jury with a denial that he accepted a bribe from King, declaring that the matter was a frame-up. On cross-examination Amos W. W. Woodcock, assistant attorney-general, conducting the case, brought an admission from Williams that the money was offered him to influence him in his official duty. Williams, however, denied that it was his intent to take a bribe, but thought it probable that it was King's intent to bribe him.

The cross-examination of Williams will continue this morning.

REFUNDED BONDS VALIDATION URGED

City Moves To Legalize
$588,000 of Issues and Prevent New Slashes.

Administration leaders Thursday moved to prevent another permanent salary slash for municipal employees when steps were taken to validate $588,000 worth of refunded city bonds due this year.

The move was initiated on the eve of a meeting of the finance committee at 7 o'clock tonight, at which another attempt to balance a finance sheet will be made, and will go to council Monday.

Sale of the validated securities to the Atlanta bond sinking fund commission probably will be suggested after the validation. The commission, composed of William T. Perkinson, W. J. Davis, Mayor James L. Key and Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, has on hand about $1,000,000 in other securities, some of which will be sold, if plans materialize, in order to absorb the $588,000 refunding project.

Absorption of the refunded bonds by the Atlanta commission will obviate the necessity of obtaining legal opinions as to whether the city can refund its bonds. Advertisements of notification of validation of the issue already have been prepared by the legal department, City Attorney James L. Mayson, holding they can be validated and refunded, and the advertising begun.

If the program goes through, Gilliam and other members of the finance committee and council, who have insisted on a balanced finance sheet, will be able to re-establish the 10 per cent additional cut in salaries of all non-school employees, one of the principal objections voiced to a finance sheet which the finance committee has recommended to council twice without success.

Gilliam asked the council at its last meeting to pass a resolution that if funds were obtained from the refunding of the 1933 bonds that the 10 per cent cut, provided in the sheet, be restored. It is anticipated that the committee will be asked to recommend such an amendment to the sheet at the meeting tonight, and if otherwise, the committee will ratify the former sheet.

Sinking fund assets are obtained through charter provisions forcing the city to set aside funds for retirement of city bonds which mature in 30 years. The commission has purchased other securities with the money in order that the fund may not be idle.

This fund, Mayson holds, could be utilized for purchase of the refunded bonds, and replaced before the 30-year bonds mature.

The finance committee will be back at Monday's session with statements from various revenue-producing department heads saying estimates of receipts are carried in the revised sheet are not too low, as charged by some council members.

Sentenced to Hang At 14, Now Paroled

Ralph Baker, sentenced 10 years ago when he was only 14 years old to hang for the murder of a deputy sheriff and for which crime his brother, George Baker, paid with his life Thursday was granted freedom on parole by order of Governor Talmadge. The prison commission recommended the release.

Baker shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Joseph W. Morton, of Walker county, at Durham Station after he and his brother had engaged in a fight with the deputy who had taken some liquor away from the boys.

A Walker county jury sentenced both boys to hang, but Governor Clifford Walker commuted the sentence of Ralph because of his extreme youth.

Young Baker, now 24, has been serving his sentence at Milledgeville. The parole was issued because Baker is in poor health and according to prison physicians has been unable to work.

Short Line Officials To Meet Here Today

A special regional meeting of the American Short Line Railroad Association, which between 50 and 75 representatives of short lines in the southern region are expected to attend, will be held at the Piedmont hotel beginning at 9 o'clock this morning.

Purpose of the meeting, as outlined by officers of the association, is to give the short line railroad executives information on some 20 matters concerning pending legislation in Washington, particularly the now acute general transportation situation.

All the executive officers of the national association, headed by President Bird M. Robinson, of Washington, D. C., are expected to attend for the membership conference.

CRASH OF AKRON HELD AVOIDABLE

Naval Aerologist Declares Westward Course Was Clear of Storm.

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 13.—(AP)—Had Commander F. C. McCord, skipper of the ill-fated U. S. S. Akron, ordered "the last few minutes," a naval court of inquiry was told today, the huge silver dirigible "might have avoided the turbulent atmosphere" in the vortex of the storm that dashed it to destruction.

The testimony came from Lieutenant Charles J. Maguire, chief aerologist at the naval air station here, and created a stir of excitement in the makeshift courtroom that had heard Lieutenant Commander H. V. Wiley, second in command on the Akron and only surviving officer, declare a few days ago that he had suggested a westward course to McCord when the storm was first sighted.

Weather researchers since the disaster, Maguire stated, convinced him that the thunderstorm which doomed the Akron did not extend westward of the Washington-Newark airline. "Using hindsight," remarked the thin, dark chief aerologist, "a continuation of the course to the westward at midnight would have avoided the severe portions of the thunderstorm."

Maguire, expanding his belief that the Akron could have avoided the fatal thunderstorm, said that "undoubtedly" even if McCord had directed the ship to pursue an easterly course long enough early in the evening "about 8 or possibly 9 o'clock" it "would have brought the ship to fair weather and the extremely violent turbulence (of the storm center) would have been avoided."

FISHER BELIEVES RIVETS IN AKRON HELD FAST
ABOARD U. S. S. PORTLAND AT SEA OFF NEW JERSEY COAST, April 13.—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander James L. Fisher believes rivets, over which a controversy arose during the building of the Akron, held fast when the giant airship crashed with a loss of 73 lives.

Fisher, who is mooring officer at the Lakehurst naval air station, examined wreckage in which the disputed rivets are believed to have been used. He said the rivets looked as good as ever and that it seemed evident the crash was not due to any breakage in that direction.

'King Kong' Advertising Postcard Handled as Mail by Local P. O.

POST CARD

I AM COMING.

EXPECT ME SOON
KING KONG

TO FOX THEATRE

Atlanta,

Georgia

Postage of the mythical "Kingdom of Skull Island," the strange South sea domain where the 50-foot monkey, King Kong, rules in the talking picture of that title which is to play at the Fox theater next week, is apparently acceptable to the United States postoffice. At least, it appears to be recognized as postage by Station B in Atlanta.

The theater is giving away to the audiences this week an advertisement printed to represent a postcard. The stamp is, of course, nothing but a burlesque stamp, with the name "Kingdom of Skull Island," with a picture of King Kong and the denomination "six simoleons." The printed address is the Fox theater. Some humorist who was handed one of these cards evidently dropped it in a mail box. Because yesterday the card came back to the Fox, with the regular morning mail, with the imitation stamp properly canceled by the Atlanta office, Station B. No, there was no "insufficient postage" charge. The postcard, after it had been through the postoffice, appeared as it is reproduced above. Some stamp collector ought to pay a big price for a cancelled stamp of the "Kingdom of Skull Island." Because it is extremely unlikely that there'll ever be another.

Ten Local Babies Sought Like Kid in Chevalier Film

BABY LEROY.

What baby in Atlanta most closely resembles year-old Baby Leroy, Hollywood infant personally selected by Maurice Chevalier to play an important role in Chevalier's latest starring picture, "A Bedtime Story," coming Saturday to the Paramount theater?

That's the key question in the "Bedtime Story" baby contest which begins today under the joint auspices of The Constitution and the Paramount theater, and in which 10 prizes are to be awarded.

Baby Leroy is pictured above. Cute little youngster, isn't he, with his chubby cheeks and stubby nose? Take a good look at him, then gaze affectionately at your own little offspring. We'll wager that you'll be surprised to note quite a resemblance, for babies at 8 months or thereabouts are apt to look very much alike. "We don't expect to find a 'dead ringer' for Monsieur Leroy, as he is addressed by his friend, Monsieur Chevalier. That means that your baby has an even chance with any in town to cop one of the big prizes.

There is no entrance fee in this contest, no puzzles to work out, no essays to write. Baby does practically everything for you. All that you must do is to send a photograph of your youngster to the "Bedtime Story" baby contest, care of the Paramount theater, before noon next Tuesday, the final day of the contest. Any sort of photograph in any sort of pose is eligible. A clear snapshot is as acceptable as a costly portrait.

This contest has no restriction whatsoever. Only one thing is important—the resemblance of your baby to Baby Leroy. There is no age limit—both baby girls and boys are eligible.

The mothers of the 10 winning babies will each receive a three-month pass to the Paramount, so they may enjoy weekly entertainment as the guests of their own babies.

Gable, Hayes at Grand in "The White Sister"
Easter week brings to Loew's Grand theater "The White Sister," an appealing story of religion and love, presenting two of the screen's outstanding personalities in a play of great poetic charm and forcefulness. Helen Hayes is seen in the title role, and Clark Gable is her sweetheart. The film is now playing in New York at $2.50 admission; regular admission prices prevail here.

"The White Sister" opens with the gaiety of a fete day. The heroine, already affianced by her father to a man of no great attraction, suddenly finds love in the person of a young soldier, gallant and gay, whose face appears at the window of her father's carriage. To her, romance with this strange young soldier seems impossible, but she does not reckon on his impetuous nature. Impervious to rebuffs, the soldier begins his wooing and finally, after much disappointment and delay, the way to marriage is at last clear for them.

And then comes the war. The soldier goes away, and presently the girl learns that her sweetheart's airplane has been shot down behind the enemy lines. Heartbroken, she tries for consolation to the church and here she finds solace for her loss. Eventually, in gratitude and humility, she resolves to dedicate her life to the church. She takes her vows, and becomes a nun.

Then it is that the soldier returns. He has undergone hardships and dared greatly to return to the girl. He arrives to find her lost. She is wedded to the church, even more sacredly bound to another than when she was married to another man.

Here is a great role for Miss Hayes, another great role for Clark Gable. Together they bring to the screen a pair of lovers somehow different from any others the films have presented—Miss Hayes, spiritual and humble and devoted, Gable fiery and overwhelming in his wooing.

PRESIDENT OFFERS HOME OWNER HELP

Small Mortgage Holder Would Be Given Aid Under Roosevelt's Plan.

By THOMAS L. STOKES.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(UP)—President Roosevelt went today to the rescue of the small home owner with a burdensome mortgage in a comprehensive legislative proposal that will put the government in the real estate loan business on a gigantic scale.

The chief executive, in another of his brief, forceful messages to congress, expressed confidence that the plan he offered will end "present uncertain and chaotic conditions which create fear and despair among both home owners and investors."

Majority leader Joseph T. Robinson immediately introduced the administration bill in the senate. It was referred to the banking and currency committee. Chairman Henry B. Steagall, of the banking and currency committee, introduced a similar bill in the house.

Uncle Sam, capitalized at $2,400,000,000, figuratively will hang up his sign and prepare to take over mortgages on homes valued up to $10,000, re-financing the home owner on easy terms, and relieve the man who now holds the mortgage by giving him 4 per cent government bonds in exchange.

Deals With Government.
Thereafter the home owner deals with the government instead of with a fellow citizen who, like himself, is suffering from depression influence.

Three-fourths of the nation's homes are in the category which may get relief. Champions of the legislation were surprised today to see the $10,000 limit. Previously a $20,000 limit had been discussed. It may be raised by congress. The total of home mortgages in the United States is $20,000,000,000.

The bill goes beyond immediate mortgage relief to authorize a chain of "Federal Savings and Loan Associations" where people may save money and borrow for future home building. They would be similar to existing private "building and loan associations." It also permits an alternative whereby a home owner whose mortgage is not taken over by the government may borrow up to 80 per cent of the value of his property.

Coupled with the similar farm mortgage relief which the house passed today, and which is pending in the senate, the new venture is one of the most far-reaching ever undertaken by a government. It constitutes enforced deflation to prevent enforced liquidation. Debts are to be adjusted on a level in keeping with the fall in values.

To add this measure to his legislative program, President Roosevelt enunciated a new philosophy of government in what he called "a declaration of national policy."

"This policy," he said, "is that the broad interests of the nation require that special safeguards should be thrown around home ownership as guaranty of social and economic stability, and that to protect home owners from inequitable enforced liquidation, in a time of general distress, is a proper concern of government."

The bill, which repeals certain provisions of the Hoover home loan act, sets up a home loan owners corporation, which is authorized to issue $200,000,000 in bonds.

An appropriation of $200,000,000 is authorized from which the corporation may make cash advances to pay taxes when the mortgage is exchanged by the mortgage for bonds, or to pay taxes on property otherwise unencumbered.

The government, in effect, becomes an intermediary and negotiator between the home owner and the holder of the mortgage. The mortgage holder may get up to 80 per cent of the value of the mortgage in 4 per cent government bonds. He then drops from the picture, having a government bond as an asset instead of a mortgage.

The corporation then refinances the mortgage with 5 per cent interest over a period of 15 years. If necessary, the corporation may grant a moratorium both on principal and interest payments up to three years at any time during the life of the loan.

$100,000,000 Authorized.
An appropriation of $100,000,000 is authorized for the "federal savings and loan associations." The government's interest in them will be through subscriptions of capital stock, just as now in the case of national banks. Any member of the existing federal home loan banks may convert itself into a federal savings and loan association, subject to regulations prescribed by the board of the corporation.

The funds of the federal savings and loan associations may be expanded by borrowing from federal home loan banks so that about $3 can be loaned on mortgages for every $1 put up by the government.

One effect of this bill, as in the case of the bankruptcy bill passed by the last congress, will be to induce mortgage holders to come to terms with home owners where this can be done. The home owner will have a bargaining weapon in the government agency. Though values of mortgages will be deflated from their previous values, the measure possesses slightly inflationary tendencies in the unloosening of credit that otherwise would be tied up.

Labor Urges Program For U.S. Public Works

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—American labor representatives put before President Roosevelt today an emergency program for huge public works construction and enactment of the shorter work week bill with a minimum wage clause.

The delegation, spokesman for unorganized as well as organized labor, represented the recent labor conference called by Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor. She accompanied the group to the White House. A bond issue as high as $6,000,000 for public works was advocated by some in the meeting, although figures of four and five billion dollars also were mentioned. "We want it to be as large as conditions permit," said William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The labor delegation included also Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor; D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; Donald Richberg, counsel of the Railway Labor Executives' Association; Miss Rose Schneiderman, of the National Women's Trade Union League; and Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

President Roosevelt listened attentively to the proposals.

Dynamite Discovered At R. B. Wilby's Home

Unexploded dynamite, with burned fuses, was found Thursday morning in the yard of R. B. Wilby, Atlanta theater man, at his residence at 707 Springdale road, N. E., according to police reports.

The discovery was made by a Negro, John Henry Hull, who told S. J. Patillo, of 812 Springdale road, a neighbor of Mr. Wilby. Police said there were two sticks of dynamite with the fuses burned to the caps. The sticks were some distance from the Wilby home and would probably have done little damage other than breaking of windows, it was said.

Mr. Wilby is head of Valatanga Theaters, operators of a chain of theaters which includes the Paramount and Georgia in Atlanta. A year ago several sink bombs and explosives were placed in the Georgia theater. This was while the house was operating on an open-shop policy. Since then, however, the theater has made a contract with the operators' union and has been using union picture operators for many months.

Other theaters in the Valatanga chain, however, have more recently had difficulty with the union, particularly in Tennessee. A bomb was placed in a theater at Chattanooga some months ago and only last Saturday nine people were injured when a bomb exploded in the lobby of the Paramount theater at Nashville.

THE MAN who could sell more life insurance than any man I ever heard of never shouted. Notice the men who hold the records for selling...they just talk in a quiet easy way.

It's like this:

Chesterfields just go along in their own quiet way making friends from day to day.

There's no noise about it, no "back talk."

The Chesterfield slogan—just two words, "They Satisfy"—is a plain simple statement telling about Chesterfield's merits.

It means that Chesterfields are milder—they taste better.

Belles Will Reign Over Seminary May Court

Lovely Miss Anne Alston, at the left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alston, has been chosen to reign as Queen of the May at the Washington Seminary May pageant to be presented Wednesday, May 17. Miss Leone Brooks, at the right, the beautiful young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks, has been selected as maid of honor to Queen Anne. Photographs by Asano, Japanese photographer.

Brooks is president of the Phi Pi Club and a member of the Pirates' Club. A bevy of other lovely, youthful belles who will serve as ladies of the court includes Misses Clare Haverly, Lucia Smith, Joyce Smith, Betty Huff, Lawson McAfee, Marie Camp, Rosebud Leide and Virginia Green.

Carrying bouquets of colorful spring flowers and wearing diaphanous pastel-shaded gowns, the members of the May court will form a picture which will be indelibly stamped in the minds of the spectators at the pageant. Forming a semi-circle at either side of the royal dais will be members of the senior class, and the other students will participate in a program of dances and novelty numbers, wearing bright-hued costumes. The Georgia bicentennial idea will be reflected in the motif to be carried out.

Miss Margaret Roddey, daughter of Mrs. C. F. Roddey, was elected to typify "The Spirit of the Seminary," it was announced yesterday at the school. Miss Roddey, named to this honor by popular vote, was chosen as the girl who most nearly fills the position of an ideal seminary girl and who represents the school most favorably in personality, character and scholastic achievement.

Heads for the editorial and business staffs of the school publications also announced who were elected from the present junior class to serve in 1933-34, during their senior year in high school, include: Miss Dora Bowden, editor-in-chief of Facts and Fancies, the school annual; Miss Joan Root, business manager; Miss Elizabeth Treasder, editor-in-chief of Minerva, the newspaper; and Miss Helen Lowndes, business manager.

Alpha Pi Fraternity Will Be Honored

Miss Judy Beers will entertain at a buffet supper Saturday evening, April 15, at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue, in Druid Hills, in compliment to members of the Alpha Pi fraternity of Boys' High school. Miss Beers is the attractive and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beers, and she was recently elected sponsor of the fraternity.

Assisting Miss Beers in entertaining will be Misses Clare Haverly, Tommie Quin, Helen Aycock, Margaret Preacher, Barbara Green and Rachel Burton. Officers of the fraternity are Ed Mattingly, Jack Crabbe, Jack Wagon, Dick Regenstein, Verne Fulmer and Billy Williamson.

Miss Bryan To Give Tea-Dance for Club.

Miss Margaret Bryan will entertain at a tea-dance Saturday in compliment to members of the Saturday Club and a number of young college belles who are at home from school for the Easter holidays.

The members of the Saturday Club include Misses Ann Atkins, Sara Archavala, Mary Elizabeth Barge, Rachel Burton, Isabel Boykin, Beverly Bailey, Julia Colquitt, Florio Sisson, Frances Sisson, Elizabeth See, Ann Shelton, Lucia Smith, Emmakate Vreman, Ida Akers, Alice Armstrong, Mae Gray, Julia Hoyt, Frances Hoyt, Elizabeth Holcomb, Dorothy Sanford, Nell Winship, Lydia Whitner, Janet Heiland, Frances Yates, Henrietta Collier, Helen Aycock, Marianna Adair, Amelia Howlett, Margaret Preacher, Robyn Peeples, Sybella Pringle, Edith Shepherd, Ann Jeter, Sara Smith, Sara Koman, Margaret Rankin, Edwanna Eby, Betty Crenshaw, Alice Davis, Ethel Erwin, Martha Erwin and Martha Fuller.

The chaperons will include Mesdames Walter Colquitt, D. C. Shepherd, Edwin Peeples, James R. Gray, Charles Collier and W. C. Rawson.

Official Hostesses At Cable Piano Co.

Official hostesses for Friday at campaign headquarters of the Atlanta Music Club's annual Membership Week, now being conducted at the Cable Piano Company, are announced by Mrs. Howard C. Smith Jr., president of the club, to include a number of the first workers and the former circle chairmen of the club, and are Mesdames John M. Cooper, Charles Boynton, James E. Little, W. O. Cheate, Ernest Bell, Isabelle S. Wall, W. F. Shallenberger, Frances Stovall Felder, S. R. Christie Jr., B. F. Parker, W. G. DeLamar, Leroy Rogers and Misses Irene Smilie, Dorothy Scott, Sarah Inman Bell, Natalie Hammond and Ethel Beyer.

Woman's Guild.

Woman's Guild of Congregational Christian church sponsors a Good Friday afternoon service at the church on the corner of Pinehurst and Ponce de Leon avenues. Miss Mary Douglas will render a violin solo, and Dr. W. T. McElveen will speak on "The Cross."

Beethoven Class.

Beethoven Music Study class, sponsored by the Council of Jewish Women, has been postponed again from April 17 until April 24, due to the absence from the city of Hugh Hodgson, who conducts the class.

Inman P. T. A. Board.

The executive board of S. M. Inman P. T. A. meets this morning at 10 o'clock instead of on Tuesday, April 18. This change has been made because of the delegates to the state convention being members of the board.

Pie Supper.

The lavender side of the contest being held by members of Mary E. La Roca grove, East Point Women's Circle, will give a benefit pie supper Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Montre, 410 Ware avenue, East Point. Cards and games will be played. Friends of the circle are invited and a small charge of 10 cents will be made.

The officers elected to serve for 1933-34 are: Mesdames Roger Williams, president; J. L. Fulghum, first vice president; C. M. Copeland, second vice president; F. F. Gilliam, recording secretary; E. E. Schenck, corresponding secretary; T. L. Mundt, treasurer; J. B. Evans, auditor, and Mrs. Williams is well qualified to

St. Luke's Choir Presents Cantata

The choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church will render "The Crucifixion," by John Stainer, this evening at 8 o'clock at the church on Peachtree at Alexandria street. Hugh Hodgson, eminent musician, organist and choir-master of the church, will direct this sacred cantata, which is one of the most popular of all the sacred cantatas. Rev. John Moore Walker, rector of the church, will give a brief verbal story of the work preceding its presentation.

Coleman Kimbro, baritone, will sing the part of the Savior, and C. E. Drummond Jr., tenor, sings most of the narrative parts. Other soloists are Miss Minna Hecker, soprano, and Mrs. J. Christopher Brown, contralto. A choir of over 50 voices will sing the choruses.

A sacred cantata presented by the choir on Good Friday is an annual occasion on the calendar of St. Luke's church. The processional and recessional, with the choir marching solemnly to the strains of Beethoven's "Funeral March," or Chopin's "Funeral March," are dramatic and stirring. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Smith Honors Duo of Visitors

Mrs. Carter Smith will entertain at luncheon today at 1 o'clock at her home in the Biltmore apartments as a complimentary gesture to her guests, Misses Katherine Witschen, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Miss Sue Pruden, of Dalton. Miss Witschen was a former classmate of Mrs. Smith at Hollins College, Va., and was among the out-of-town guests at the marriage of another schoolmate, Miss Frances Boykin, to William Barrett, of Jacksonville, which took place Tuesday evening at a fashionable ceremony. Miss Pruden is a sister of Mrs. Smith, who was the former Miss Sue Pruden.

Invited to meet the honor guests are a group of their close friends including Misses Helen Bivings, Harriet Wynne, Anne Wynne Fleming, Mamie Raine, Catherine Flagler, Louise Moore, Jane Gilman, of Chattanooga, Tenn., the guest Miss Bivings; Mesdames Martin E. Kilpatrick and Robert B. Fegram IV.

The "Funeral March" is dramatic and stirring. The public is invited to attend.

Business and Professional Women's Club Names Delegates to State Convention

Mrs. James E. Fuller was elected official delegate to the state convention of business and professional women to be held in Albany May 8 and 9, at the meeting of the local organization held Wednesday evening at the Wincoff hotel. Other delegates named were Misses Leila Thompson, Maude Sewell, Jennie Williams, Ellen Douglas and Mesdames Flora Osburn and Janice McKinnis; alternates, Misses Idealia Bellah, Anna Wootan, Blanche Wood and Mesdames Maude Gilbert, Kathleen Barlow and B. L. Fariss.

The program for the evening included an interesting talk, describing characteristics of birds by Carter B. Whitaker, one of the founders of the Atlanta Bird Club, Mrs. Howard C. Smith, president of the Atlanta Music Club, told of the opportunities offered by membership in this meritorious civic organization and extended an invitation to join. Mrs. Grace Lee Townsend, accompanied by Mrs. Smith sang "The Blackbird Song," by Cyril Scott, and "Good Morning," by Greig.

Miss Jennie Williams, chairman of the membership committee, announced the following new members: Mrs. W. V. Barlow, president and treasurer, C. C. Dann Realty Company; Mrs. Ralph L. Hill, secretary, Georgia National Life Insurance Company; Miss Kenneth Maner, teacher of history, Hoke Smith Junior High school, and Miss Lota Knighton, cashier and bookkeeper of the Leon Frois Shoppe.

Mrs. F. C. McKinney, chairman of the hospital committee for co-operating with the Women's Auxiliary of the Grady hospital, made a report of her work. The members of the club pledged themselves to furnish a supply of wash cloths and magazines. In behalf of the women's auxiliary, Mrs. McKinney extended an invitation to an open house to be held at the hospital May 12 from 4 to 6 o'clock. Miss Kenneth Maner was appointed chairwoman of the education committee. Serving with her are Misses Margaret Walte and Elizabeth Eager.

Miss Clara Bright, chairman of the public relations committee, gave a report of the national business women's week activities observed in March. Special thanks were given to Mrs. Maude Gilbert for the attractive edition of Flashlight which she published, giving the report of the program as carried out in detail. Miss Shuman, president of the Georgia federation, outlined some of the advantages of attending the state convention. Miss Lucienne Alexander, chairman of the transportation committee, gave the report and hotel rates for the convention. Anyone desiring further information or wishing to make reservation may do so by telephoning Miss Alexander in the evening, Hemlock 4227-J.

Mrs. Flora Osburn, chairman of the research committee, gave a report of work up to date and made the following recommendation, which was adopted: "Believing that vocational guidance has a definite relation to economics, to employment and unemployment, the research committee recommends that the Business and Professional Women's Club of Atlanta make a study of this subject, and that it take the initiative for the promotion of a vocational guidance clinic for the community, inviting other business and professional, civic and other organizations, groups and individuals to join in such promotion." This vocational guidance program is one of the most important projects embodied in the ten-year objective, which was adopted as a guide for the programs of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Other members of the research committee are Misses Maude Sewell, Maurya Graham and Jane Van de Vrede.

German Supper Feles Popular Bridal Couple

Novel in every detail was the German supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Pegram IV, Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Frederick and Mr. and Mrs. D. Fred Rogers entertained last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers in celebration of the first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Pegram and honoring Miss Louise Moore and Daniel Edwards Conklin, whose marriage will take place April 19. Mrs. Pegram was formerly Miss Nancy Frederick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Frederick, and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers. Miss Moore and Mr. Conklin were numbered among the attendants in the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Pegram, both of whom will participate in their wedding.

Mrs. Pegram received her guests wearing her wedding gown of rich ivory-tinted satin, cut on plain, modish lines, and the bridesmaids donned for the occasion the gowns they wore among the attendants in the wedding, which were of turquoise blue chiffon, featuring an applique of wide pink satin at the waistline in front, extending into a short sash, tied in the back.

Pastel-shaded garden flowers centered the main table, which was overlaid with a lace cover and set with silver compotes, candlesticks and other appointments in silver. Garden flowers featured the decorations throughout the house. A clever and original entertainment furnished by its feature numbers. Guests included members of the Frederick-Pegram wedding party and the Moore-Conklin bridal group.

Miss Moore and her mother, Mrs. H. Clay Moore, will be at home informally Monday afternoon, April 17, at their home at 2580 Peachtree road. Friends of the hostesses will call during the afternoon.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Attack Vs. Defense

"The cards were stacked against us, so I could not make the contract," is a frequent remark at the bridge table, sometimes founded on fact, but quite frequently, if the analysis is close and accurate, upon the failure of the declarer to take full advantage of all the possibilities in the play of the combined 26 cards at his disposal. No matter how brilliant or how accurate the defense, a good contract player can often find a counter-play that will foil the machinations of his adversaries and result in the fulfillment of his contract, provided the contract is one which should have been reached.

In the recent Eastern Pal: Championship event held in New York city, there seemed to be an unusual wealth of interesting hands. I have already commented on the bidding of many of these and on the play of others. Today's hand, also from this event, gave to a number of players opportunity for brilliant defensive plays, against which, however, if Declarer took full advantage of his hand, there was nothing to be done.

West, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

West North East South

1♠ 3♦ 3♠ Pass

4♠ Pass Pass Pass

At most tables the contract of four spades, played by East, was reached, and the contract was either made or defeated, depending upon the accuracy of East's play. At one table where Mr. Samuel Fry Jr. was South and Mr. Oswald Jacoby, North, the Opening lead was the 9 of diamonds, which was won by North and the suit returned. Mr. Fry playing the dummy, apparently by a "down and out" signal. Mr. Jacoby continued the suit and the Declarer rightly decided that he could not afford to use one of Dummy's high trumps to ruff, fearing the very combination held by South in the trump suit. He ruffed in his own hand and discarded a heart from Dummy. This was bad play, as it made the later play much less elastic.

Now a trump was led and South did not go up with the Ace. A second trump was then led and again South refused to win. The Declarer now made his second mistake in the play of the hand. He continued with the third round of trumps, planning to get in his own hand with the Ace of hearts, pick up South's last trump and thus fulfill his contract. At this point, however, South won the trump lead and returned a club, having decided that East held but a single club in view of the fact that he had bid both spades and hearts during the auction and had shown two diamonds.

Against this line of play the Declarer was helpless. He must still concede South a trick either by a finesse of the heart suit or by permitting him to ruff the fourth round of clubs. The Declarer need not have lost the hand, as was demonstrated by others in actual play. The return of the third diamond and the ruff in the closed hand are almost automatic on the bidding. Two rounds of trumps should then be taken, and if South retains the Ace, after a recent illness at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. C. Guy.

Mr. and Mrs. John Miller and son, Jack Miller were spend-the-day guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Floyd.

Miss Hilda Keen and Miss Katherine Orr were guest artists of WJLT Saturday evening.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence and questions should be sent to Miss Chatfield, care The Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Torn between love and duty, that's what I am. A husband and three lovely little children, and I am a thing—duty; a handsome man that fascinates me and forces from me the declaration that I love him—love, I mean, and when my husband discovered it he was deeply hurt. I promised him I would give up the silly idea of having an affair on the side but I broke my promise and have steadily gone on seeing this man. What do you think of the man? Do you think my husband would forgive me, if I were to tell him the truth about my little children, and my two lovely ones? Could I make this man happy if I were to desert my family to marry him? Could he make me happy? LOVER.

ALICE.

You could not make this man happy. He could not make you happy. For happiness hinges on honor, which he hasn't and you haven't. He has a right to know if you love yourself or for him. What can anyone think of this man but that he is evil in thought and conduct, that he is a maniac, a love-thief and a rascal.

If you fancy that you are now torn between love and duty, just continue to betray your husband and to cheat your little children, and you will discover that life has ground you to bits and left you nothing but the memory of the anguish you endured in the grime of it. It simply can't be made with any degree of satisfaction, this attempt to walk out on duty to meet lust, masquerading under the name of love. Before we have done with life all masks are stripped from us and we see ourselves and others, together with the traits we embody, in a true light. While the dance of youth is on, the masks may be held in place but the dance is the exercise of youth and none of us can keep our youth. Furthermore, the divinity in the worst of us cannot find satisfaction in the sensuality in the best of us.

When duty once drives her braid into us she never withdraws it. Any effort to run away from her only tears our flesh and makes us sore without releasing us. As long as a woman lives, her husband and her children have a prior claim on her love and loyalty. I am not sure that your husband would forgive you if he knew the truth. In any case we cannot ask forgiveness for a wrong of which we have not repented, nor seek to be re-established in the good graces of one whom we continue to wrong.

My advice to you, poor woman, is to put the renegade man out of your thoughts, to cut off all communication with him and to dedicate yourself to a husband that loves you and to children that are dependent upon you, children who look to you for protection and guidance and good example.

NANCY PAGE

It's Smart To Have Simple Clothes

BY FLORENCE La GANKE.

Plain socks, black oxfords and a simple straw hat completed the outfit. Nancy chose a straw rather than an elaborate lace or silk hat. Joan carried her new coat over her arm. It was the regulation dark blue cheviot.

Her coat from two years ago was about the Peter. By reversing the buttoning putting the right over the left the regulation coat became a boy's outfit. That is one of the beauties of these simple coats. They never go out of style and may be handed down from sister to sister or from sister to brother or from cousin to cousin.

Peter's beret was dark blue. His socks were plain. A two-piece jersey suit was under the coat.

The sweater of this suit was quite like Joan's slip-over sweater—plain neckline, knit band to keep sweater in place at or near the waistline. With Joan's sweater she wore a pleated skirt.

Both outfits were practical and inexpensive, too.

How much money should one budget for clothes? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Nancy Page asking for her leaflet called "Budgeting is Fun." Write her care of The Constitution.

DELICIOUS CEREAL OVERCOMES COMMON CONSTIPATION

ALL-BRAN Provides "Bulk," Vitamin B and Iron

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN meets a basic need of the American dietary. It supplies "bulk"—so helpful in correcting common constipation. In eleven years, ALL-BRAN has won millions of satisfied users.

New tests show added reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN. Laboratory experiments prove that, in addition to "bulk," it provides vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from constipation can be overcome by this pleasant cereal. How much better than using pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN is mild. Its "bulk" is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Two tablespoons daily are sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

FRANCE SEES THE LIGHT.

The designation of former Premier Edouard Herriot to represent France as a "fact finder" at the round-table discussions on economics and war debts, to be held soon in Washington, and the reception given the announcement by the French press generally, is an encouraging indication of the change in that country on the question of the defaulted debt payment due last December.

Herriot is the most internationally-minded of the French leaders and has consistently urged the payment of the overdue installment. That he should be selected to report on the facts discussed at the Washington conference predicated that France will before long join Great Britain and Italy in bringing her war debt account with us up to date.

It is not improbable that President Roosevelt's straightforward and direct manner of handling problems, and the original exclusion of France from the debt parleys, has played an important part in changing the French attitude.

France cannot afford to be left out, or to occupy a disadvantageous position, in any agreements entered into by the United States, Great Britain, Italy and other nations looking to the betterment of the world-wide economic condition, but it is plain that one or the other will happen should she continue as a defaulter.

So it would appear that the virility and fearlessness of the Roosevelt administration is having a clarifying effect on international affairs, in addition to bringing order out of the chaos of domestic conditions when it took over control of the government.

During the past 12 months France has blocked many moves aimed at improvement in world conditions, and now she is holding up action on the four-power proposal of Mussolini seeking to guarantee peace in Europe.

Such a policy is out of accord with the direct methods of President Roosevelt, and with the United States taking the lead in the efforts to rehabilitate world affairs, France will find herself in an unfortunate position unless she performs a right-about-face. That she realizes this, and is moving toward a change of attitude, is clearly indicated by the selection of Herriot.

TWO-CENT LOCAL MAIL.

The two-cent postage rate to be recommended by Postmaster-General Farley for letters to be delivered in the community in which they are mailed will be welcomed especially by the business concerns of the country.

Since the adoption last year of the three-cent rate, many large companies have withdrawn mail from their local correspondence from the mails, using hand delivery or other methods of distribution.

With the restoration of the two-cent rate for local letters, the mails will be in greater use, so that it is probable that the government's revenue from this type of mail will be increased, rather than decreased, by the lower rate.

It is to be regretted that conditions do not warrant now the re-establishment of the two-cent rate for letters for distant delivery, but Postmaster-General Farley's recommendation is a step in the right direction.

It is not sound to charge as much for the delivery of a letter within the community in which it is mailed, a delivery which does not entail any expense of transportation by rail, air or water, as to send the same letter across the continent.

When a return to the two-cent rate for distant delivery becomes possible, the application of a one-cent rate to local, or drop letters, as they are termed by the post-office department, would be in order.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

LIFE INSURANCE WEEK.

The usual annual Life Insurance Day which has been observed for several years in the United States will be extended this year to a full week in order that the blessing of life insurance may be more fully sent to every home in the country. From April 17 to 22 the advantages of the protection furnished by life insurance, not only to the dependents of policyholders but to the insured themselves, will be sent to every fireside in the country, through the medium of newspapers, radio and public meetings of various kinds.

The week is sponsored nationally by the National Underwriters' Association and its observance in Atlanta will be under the direction of the Atlanta Underwriters' Association.

It is fitting that this expansion of the annual period set aside for the promulgation of information about life insurance should have been decided upon at this time, for during the past four years life insurance has been a greater bulwark of protection and safety to the people of the country than perhaps at any other time in its existence.

Widows and children suddenly deprived at a time of world-wide distress when millions are dependent upon public charity, of those to whom they have looked for the necessities of life, have found security in the provision made for them in the shape of life insurance.

Policyholders have been able to save homes and business interests through income from policies taken out in more prosperous days.

In these troubled years there has been no greater stabilizing effect on conditions throughout the country than life insurance, and it is well that the public should have impressed upon it the debt the nation owes to this great business and humanitarian interest.

The faith of the people in life insurance is shown by the growth of outstanding policies from $22,000,000,000 in 1915 to $108,000,000,000 in 1931. In the latter year a total of $2,600,000,000 was paid to beneficiaries, when the total income of the country for the 12-month period was less than $60,000,000,000.

Every American should heed the message of the indispensability of life insurance that will be broadcast throughout the United States next week. No home, from the humblest to the finest, can afford to be, in this enlightened day, without the protection which can be found in life insurance for the future safety and comfort of the dependents of every family circle.

GOOD DECISION FOR NAVY.

The decision of Secretary Swanson that the officer who will be named to succeed Rear Admiral Moffett as chief of the bureau of aeronautics must be a man with flying experience will undoubtedly redound to the benefit of the navy. Especially since the sensational charges that the development of naval aviation was being impeded because of a bureaucratic clique in control of naval affairs, there has been a somewhat general feeling that things were not all that they should be in the navy.

The appointment to the head of the flying branch of the navy of a man who knows nothing of flying from actual experience would be certain to bring down further criticism upon the sea-going branch of our armed forces, especially since there are in the navy many men well equipped to discharge the duties of the post who have had experience in aviation.

To have sidetracked these better-equipped men merely that those older in service might be advanced to higher position would not have been for the best of the service and would certainly have resulted in widespread criticism.

Secretary Swanson's long familiarity with navy affairs as a result of his many years' service on the naval committee of the senate enabled him to foresee the danger to the navy's cause in the appointment of a non-flier to succeed Admiral Moffett, and his statement will undoubtedly be generally approved.

Why Bother To Mark His Bill Paid If He Doesn't Acknowledge the Debt?

By Robert Quillen

We are commanded to forgive our enemies—not, apparently, for their sake, but for our own.

Like many another commandment, this one safeguards the body as well as the soul. It takes account of the fact that malice is a poison. But there are offenders who cannot be forgiven. They will not meet the terms on which all forgiveness is based.

Is it reasonable to suppose that man is required to be more generous than his God?

On what terms are man's sins forgiven? Only on condition that he repent and ask forgiveness.

"A broken and a contrite heart." That is the essential and just requirement.

It is easy to forgive those who come to you with words of repentance. The most bitter wrongs are forgotten and the hardest heart is melted when the offender says in humble contrition: "I am sorry; forgive me."

But there are offenders who will not humble themselves. They neither repent nor acknowledge their offense.

They are the people who are always right. When they seem to make mistakes, they have a ready alibi. Their wrongs are caused by fool drivers in other cars. The remarks for which they are called to account were misquoted. Prove them in the wrong and they were not wrong; you merely misunderstood them.

Any mistake in their work was the fault of a helper. If they fail to obey, the orders were garbled by a stupid messenger. If they fail to keep an agreement with you, you misunderstood its terms. And if they persistently wrong you and harm you to benefit themselves, they not only justify their acts but invent some plausible story to prove that the fault was yours.

What can you do? Such people never repent, for they are never wrong. They never humble themselves, for they are never at fault. Zanzara was the type. He went to the chair still sullenly muttering: "I no care." And the murder he did was not his fault, but the fault of the woman who caught his arm.

You can't forget that spirit. You can forget, but there is no virtue in a poor memory.

Forgiveness, like a quarrel, requires two—one to ask and one to give. The mill can't give free toll to the man who doesn't bring any corn.

Mother of Coleman Joyous Over News

Mrs. W. J. Coleman, mother of Robert Coleman, was described by an East Mercer avenue neighbor Thursday night as "the happiest old soul I ever saw" after receiving the news that her son had been sentenced to the crime for which her son has served four years in prison.

Many neighborhood friends of Mrs. Coleman called to see her after the announcement. James Starks, who told them that Robert Jr. was living in the country with his aunt, as related by Coleman in his letter to his mother, said he knew "her attitude toward him is perfectly friendly."

TALMADGE CONTINUES SILENT ON BEER ISSUE

Governor Eugene Talmadge Thursday continued to "hold his tongue" on the proposed special session of the legislature for beer, although Speaker of the House E. D. Rivers and Representative Eugene A. Epting, of Clarke county, leader of the movement to plumb the assembly sentiment, held brief conferences with him.

Epting announced that four members of the general assembly who had answered his questionnaire and signified their intention of voting for beer were E. D. Rivers and Representative Bibb; Charles Swain, of Warren; E. S. Settle, of Butts; and H. Grady Moore, of Calhoun county. Epting, after his conference with the governor, said he believed the only measure that would pass would be one with a referendum clause attached.

Epting said that of about 70 members of the assembly, he believed with 64 or 65 for beer. "Now I am getting them to tell that to the governor," he added. "When he hears from the end of the week, he will have no other avenue open to him but to call the session."

After his interview, Rivers said: "I believe if the governor becomes convinced the general assembly will pass a beer measure and not go into other matters, he will call the session. My people down in Lanier county are very anxious to see the beer issue there will be plenty shipped in from Florida. I hope that Georgia is thoughtful enough to legalize the beer and place a tax on it."

Moffett and McCord Buried in Arlington

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, leader of the country's naval air forces, and Commander Frank C. McCord, captain of the lost Akron, were buried today in Arlington cemetery.

The two victims of the air disaster, which ten days ago carried more than 70 officers and men to death in the Akron, were buried in separate ceremonies, each escorted to the grave by officers of his own rank.

The pallbearers for Moffett, chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics, were Rear Admiral Arthur W. Radford, William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and Secretary Swanson himself attended the rites. Commanders with whom Mofford served stood by as "Taps" was blown over his grave.

Freighter in Distress In Gale Off Cape Cod

NEW YORK, April 13.—(AP)—The freighter Malaga, with 32 men aboard, was in distress with a broken shaft and a yaw off Cape Cod, with a heavy sea running, and was being aided by a tugboat.

The cutter Osage reported the plight of the freighter in a message to coast guard headquarters here. At the time the message was sent eight lines had been shot over to the Malaga, but all had parted.

Paul Burson Named To Board of Regents

Governor Eugene Talmadge Thursday named Paul Burson, prominent Walton county citizen, as a member of the board of regents to succeed Judge Thomas E. Green, Athens, resigned.

Mr. Burson, who will attend the first meeting of the board today, was master farmer in 1929. His home is at Monroe, Ga.

With practice one soon learns to do this without any discomfort at all. In the treatment of various nasal conditions in infants and young children it is the ideal method, as it may be employed with the patient lying down, with a shallow basin to catch the outflow.

POWER HEADS RAP SHOWN'S PROPOSAL

Arkwright, Others Oppose Authorizing Government To Build Lines.

By WILLIAM L. BEALE.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—An old storm-center of Muscle Shoals history—government power distribution—today lost a vehement opposition to this important part of President Roosevelt's Tennessee valley plans.

W. L. Wilkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, presented before the House committee witnesses who demanded that authority for the government to build electric power transmission lines be stricken from the administration plan.

"We are not protesting the plan," Wilkie emphasized, but he and his associates contended vigorously for another plan to provide the surplus power produced by the government in the Shoals area be sold to private companies at the switchboard.

"We feel there is no need of building any transmission lines," testified E. A. Yates, vice president of the Commonwealth Corporation and a leading southern power company of that group.

"To my mind, it would be a sheer waste of money," Yates continued. "Any line built in this territory is simply a duplication of existing facilities."

The six companies for which Yates spoke were the Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina power companies and the Gulf Power Company in Florida.

President S. Arkwright, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia Power Company, introduced himself as "a traditional democrat who votes the ticket and neither agrees with all the policies of the candidate or not."

In urging the sale of power to private companies at the switchboard, Arkwright said that only this plan could the greatest benefit be brought to the most people.

Serves 90 Per Cent. He said his company supplies 90 per cent of the Georgia power service and has 145,928 customers.

"We have a sparsely populated territory," Arkwright testified. "The teaching customers are above the average."

"We have 25 hydroelectric plants and now have an excess generating capacity of 137,397,000 kilowatt hours annually."

"That means that if we buy power from the government at Muscle Shoals, whatever we pay would be much more to our costs."

"Our rural rates are the lowest in the world. All our rates in Georgia are uniform and are fixed by the Georgia public service commission."

"It is impossible for the government without co-operation with our company to bring benefits generally to all the people of Georgia," Arkwright testified.

Rates Would Jump. For example, if a transmission line is built from Muscle Shoals to Atlanta, the government would increase our rates elsewhere."

Yates said energy to be created by building the Cove Creek dam in Tennessee would not be necessary to the Georgia public service commission.

Arkwright and added that from an economic standpoint "these six companies would not build a single additional dam on the Tennessee river."

Asked his attitude toward the proposed Norris amendment to make transmission lines common carriers subject to federal regulation, Yates said "I would be disrupting the Georgia public service commission."

practical standpoint and would interfere materially with the operation of these companies."

Arkwright, a Nebraska Republican, Nebraska, author of the bill already approved by the senate agriculture committee, is preparing such an amendment to offer on the senate floor.

For years he has been the leading congressional advocate of government construction of transmission lines.

Shows and Warmer Forecast for Today

Showers and warmer temperatures are predicted for today by George W. Mindling, United States meteorologist. A maximum of 75 and a minimum of 60 degrees, as compared with 68 and 49 on Thursday, the weatherman said.

There probably will be a change to cooler after the showers, bringing cool mornings Saturday and Sunday, although the days probably will be rather pleasant, Mr. Mindling said.

Baillie-Stewart Given Five-Year Prison Term

LONDON, April 13.—(AP)—A sentence of dishonorable discharge from the army and five years' penal servitude was imposed today upon Lieutenant Colonel Baillie-Stewart, a British army officer convicted by a court-martial of violation of the official secrets act.

The prosecution contended at the court-martial that the lieutenant, a member of a distinguished military family and an officer in the aristocratic Seaforth Highlanders, revealed military secrets against a foreign agent for 50 pounds or more, receiving the money from a man known as Otto Waldemar Obst, of Berlin.

He denied, however, betraying army secrets and his counsel contended the money came from a German girl known as Marie Louise he had met while on leave in Berlin. The payment, it was said, was in consideration of the information which he had entered with the young woman.

The prison sentence will be served in a civil prison.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

On the day that Angela Chiaromonte's engagement is announced to Ernesto Traversi, both children of rich parents in a city near Rome, Angela, quite by chance meets a handsome young army officer, Giovanni. There is a carnival and street celebration going on, and Angela, after going to her home from church, resolves to join the happy celebrants without her father knowing it. While enjoying herself amidst the people of the street she encounters Giovanni and he insists on taking her to a restaurant where they enjoy the music and have tea and cakes. They fall completely in love. Starting at her father's gate, they promise to see each other again soon, at any cost. On the night when Angela's father announces her engagement, Giovanni manages to be present, and while the announcement is being made, takes her into the garden and tells her of his great love and his intention to marry her. The father surprises them, orders Angela into the house to her fiancé, and tells Giovanni that he must never be seen with his daughter again. When his daughter goes to her lover, he seeks to stop her. A terrible automobile accident occurs, and the father is killed. Angela moves to a tiny flat and Giovanni comes to see her. Grieved by the loss of her parent she refuses. Then comes the World War. Giovanni is going away and Angela is praying that she will see him again. While she is praying she hears the noise of a plane. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Angela entered the great church that stood in her city, this city that had brought her nothing but abject sorrow within the last year, yet one which had brought her the only happiness she had known in life. Meanwhile, had the real truth been known, Giovanni was not dead! He was rescued from a burning plane by a German family, the mother of which was Italian. They nursed his poor broken body back to health with a kindness and gentleness soldiers seldom know. When he was finally mended well enough to walk, he left them, resolving to get word to Angela that he was still alive. Trudging across blown-up fields and torn forests by night and hobbling along with the aid of a cane, he made but little progress. He did not know the country and before three days, he was captured by German privates and taken to a prison camp. Days went by and he could only look at the country outside with longing. They refused to mail his letters and he was forced to content himself as best he could with the faint hope that Angela somehow would realize that he was not dead. But one night his chance came. Cholera had broken out in the prison and men were dying by tens and twenties.

Posing as a dead man, Giovanni was carried out of the camp to the burying grounds, where he overpowered a single guard, and stealing a German plane, made his get-away. He headed straight for the little city in which he had met Angela. Finally, he arrived after spending hours in the air, days on trains and afoot. He went to the flat where he last saw her. No one knew here there. From one place he went to another, but could learn nothing of her whereabouts. At last he saw the priest, who told Giovanni Angela's story.

"But father," he pleaded, "she became a White Sister because she thought me dead. This is not right. No religion should hold a person against his or her will."

"You are wrong," said the priest.

"I know she'd be the boss. You know a woman's got plenty of will power if she's got straight hair and don't try to make it curl!" (Copyright, 1933, for The Constitution.)

Angela was breathless. "Yes, always, Giovanni." Then they parted, and the young officer rushed downstairs to be with his unit marching by in the streets. Angela watched from the balcony.

Weeks passed and there were always letters from the front. Angela would read them with the good father, who visited her almost daily. He and Miss both assured her that no harm would come to Giovanni, but one day, she learned differently. A letter from headquarters informed her that her lover had been shot down by a German plane after he had bravely fought back for hours. This was too much for her. "I know she will," said Giovanni. They left for the hospital, where Angela was nursing. Here they saw one another for the first time. She could not bear the shock and fled to her room without saying a word. Here she fell on her knees and prayed to God to give her strength to do that which was right.

"Are you sure of your step, my daughter?"

"I know no other, father, and it is this that I want most of all."

"Then I shall take you to Mother Superior."

Posing as a dead man, Giovanni was carried out of the camp to the burying grounds, where he overpowered a single guard, and stealing a German plane, made his get-away. He headed straight for the little city in which he had met Angela. Finally, he arrived after spending hours in the air, days on trains and afoot. He went to the flat where he last saw her. No one knew here there. From one place he went to another, but could learn nothing of her whereabouts. At last he saw the priest, who told Giovanni Angela's story.

"But father," he pleaded, "she became a White Sister because she thought me dead. This is not right. No religion should hold a person against his or her will."

"You are wrong," said the priest.

"I know she'd be the boss. You know a woman's got plenty of will power if she's got straight hair and don't try to make it curl!" (Copyright, 1933, for The Constitution.)

Angela was breathless. "Yes, always, Giovanni." Then they parted, and the young officer rushed downstairs to be with his unit marching by in the streets. Angela watched from the balcony.

Weeks passed and there were always letters from the front. Angela would read them with the good father, who visited her almost daily. He and Miss both assured her that no harm would come to Giovanni, but one day, she learned differently. A letter from headquarters informed her that her lover

"our religion holds no one, Angela may go to you if she wishes."

"I know she will," said Giovanni. They left for the hospital, where Angela was nursing. Here they saw one another for the first time. She could not bear the shock and fled to her room without saying a word. Here she fell on her knees and prayed to God to give her strength to do that which was right.

Angela entered the great church that stood in her city, this city that had brought her nothing but abject sorrow within the last year, yet one which had brought her the only happiness she had known in life.

Meanwhile, had the real truth been known, Giovanni was not dead! He was rescued from a burning plane by a German family, the mother of which was Italian. They nursed his poor broken body back to health with a kindness and gentleness soldiers seldom know. When he was finally mended well enough to walk, he left them, resolving to get word to Angela that he was still alive. Trudging across blown-up fields and torn forests by night and hobbling along with the aid of a cane, he made but little progress. He did not know the country and before three days, he was captured by German privates and taken to a prison camp. Days went by and he could only look at the country outside with longing. They refused to mail his letters and he was forced to content himself as best he could with the faint hope that Angela somehow would realize that he was not dead. But one night his chance came. Cholera had broken out in the prison and men were dying by tens and twenties.

Posing as a dead man, Giovanni was carried out of the camp to the burying grounds, where he overpowered a single guard, and stealing a German plane, made his get-away. He headed straight for the little city in which he had met Angela. Finally, he arrived after spending hours in the air, days on trains and afoot. He went to the flat where he last saw her. In their hearts---LOVE!
In their veins---DEATH!

Two men loved Perilla. One married her and three days later, slid slowly to the floor, a corpse! The other took her under his protection and three days later, toppled abruptly and mysteriously from robust health to the grave!

Was it co-incidence, or were these men victims of the most ingenious murderer in detective fact or fiction?

By VICTOR LERANK.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(P)—Rail-ties in various secondary industrial and utility groups gave the bond market its today despite the apparent disinclination of many high grade issues to move out of a narrow range.

There were few definite news developments to account for the display of strength in the low and medium priced categories.

Due to the activity in Liberty Fourth 4-1s and a few specialties, the trading volume expanded to $11,130,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporation loans advanced three-fourths of a point.

There were some mild irregularities in the government section, but the three Liberty issues were up 4-32ds of a point each.

Among the best corporation gainers were Goodrich 6s, up 3-34; Goodyear 5s, up 1-34; International Telephone convertible 4-1-2s, up 2-78; Remington 5s, up 4. A number of the rails were up fractions to around a point.

The foreign section was fairly steady although the Germans were quite erratic at one day.

Committee Clears Walker's Brother

NEW YORK, April 13. —(AP)—The medical grievance committee of the unanimously disapproved charges of fraud and deceit in the practice of medicine against Dr. William H. Walker, brother of former Mayor James J. Walker.

The charges were filed by the city affairs committee. They grew out of testimony regarding fee-splitting which was given at the hearings of the Holstadter legislative committee.

LOANS TO BROKERS

DECREASE IN WEEK

WASHINGTON, April 13.—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending April 12 were announced by the federal reserve board at $375,000,000, a decrease of $1,000,000 under the preceding week.

EASTER GREETINGS FROM MRS. DULL

On this Easter gift cake, a sugar rabbit, and the best candy eggs we could buy, adorn a caramel icing which is made of fine brown sugar, pure table butter and milk. All around the edge is thick white Fondant icing. And between the three layers we have spooned that smooth, luscious filling known as "lemon cheese"—but which is made of pure sugar, flour, milk, butter, vanilla extract, and the juice of two lemons.

The ingredients alone would cost you 61c.
